Lineage.

SIR ANDREW GRAY had charters from Robert Bruce, of Broxmouth, in Roxburghshire, and of Longforgund, and one third of Craigie, Warriston, &c., in Forfarshire.

JOHN GRAY, of Broxmouth, who appears on record from 1343 to 1366, the year of his death, was father of

SIR PATRICK GRAY, of Broxmouth, who d. 1421. His son,

SIR ANDREW GRAY, of Broxmouth, m. 1st, Janet, dau. and heir of Sir Roger Mortimer, by whom he got the lands of Foulis, in Perthshire; 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Walter Buchanan, of that ilk, and d. 1438. His son, by the first marriage,

ANDREW GRAY, of Foulis, was a hostage for JAMES I., and employed in various embassies. He was made a lord of parliament as Lord Gray of Foulis, in 1444, and held the office of Master of the Household. In 1452 he obtained leave to build the Castle of Huntly, in the Carse of Gowrie, now called Castle Lyon, and belonging to the Earl of Strathmore. He m. 1418, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of Rires, and was s. by his grandson, ANDREW, 2nd Lord Gray, justiciary of Scotland, and heritable Sheriff of Forfar, son of Patrick, Master of Gray, by Annabella, his wife, dau. of Alexander, 2nd Lord Forbes. Lineage.

The Hamiltons, of Innerwick, co. Haddington, from whom the Earls of Haddington descend, are an early cadet of the house of Hamilton, the first of them being John, 2nd son of Sir Walter Fitzgilbert, who swore fealty to Edward I.

Thomas Hamilton, of Orchartfield, a cadet of the house of Innerwick, acquired, in 1522, from John, Earl of Lennox, the Barony of Bathgate, co. Linlithgow; and in 1524 purchased the lands of Ballincrieff, in the same shire. He m. Margaret Cant, and was s. by his son,

Thomas Hamilton, who fell at the battle of Pinkie, 10 Sept. 1547, leaving two sons, Thomas.

John, a secular priest, who, leaving Scotland on account of his religion, took up his abode at Paris in 1573, and was appointed professor of philosophy in the college of Navarre.

He became tutor to the Cardinal de Bourbon, in 1576; and to Francis de Joyeuse, afterwards a cardinal, in 1578; and was chosen rector of the university of Paris in 1584. He was a zealous partizan of the League, and one of the council who offered the crown to PHILIP II. of Spain, in 1591. When HENRY IV. entered Paris, in 1594, Hamilton was arrested, but had liberty soon after to depart from Paris. He retired to Brussels, and in 1601, ventured to revisit his native country, after an absence of nearly thirty years. He found a temporary asylum at the castle of Lord Ogilvie; but in 1609, was arrested by a party of life guards, and committed to the Tower of London, where he died.

The elder son,

SIR THOMAS HAMILTON, of Priestfield, had a charter of Balbyn, Drumcairn, and Priestfield, in the year 1597. He was admitted a lord of Session in 1607, but resigned his seat on the bench to his 2nd son, the next year. Sir Thomas m. Elizabeth, dau. of James Heriot, of Trabroun, and had issue (besides daus.),

THOMAS, his successor.
Andrew (Sir), of Redhouse, having m. Jean, dau. and heir of John Laing, of Redhouse. He was a lord of session 1608-37.
John (Sir), of Magdalene, co. Linlithgow; an extraordinary lord of session, and lord-register of Scotland.
Patrick, under-secretary of state to his brother, the Earl of Haddington.
Alexander, general of artillery, who had a high command in the troops sent to the assistance of GUSTAVUS-ADOLPHUS, King of Sweden, under the 1st Duke of Hamilton.

The eldest son,

SIR THOMAS HAMILTON, of Priestfield, b. in 1563, studied the law in France, was admitted advocate in 1587, and soon distinguishing himself at the bar, was appointed a lord of Session in 1592, by the title of Lord Drumcairn. He was subsequently one of the commissioners of the Treasury of Exchequer called Octavians, and king's advocate. In 1604, he was nominated a commissioner by parliament to treat of a union with England. In 1612, he was received lord-clerk-register of Scotland; and in the same year succeeded Sir Alexander Hay, as secretary of state. He was elevated to the peerage, 30 Nov. 1613, as Lord Binning and Byres, was appointed lord-president of the Court of Session in 1616, and created Earl of Melrose, 20 March, 1619. His lordship m 1st, Margaret, dau. of James Bothwick, Esq. of Newbyres, by whom he had an only dau., Christian, m. 1st, to John, Lord Lindsay, and 2ndly, to Robert, Lord Boyd. He m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of James Foulis, of Colinton, by whom he had three sons and three daus.; and 3rdly, Janet, 2nd dau. of Sir Thomas Ker, of Fernihurst, and widow of Sir Patrick Home, by whom he had no issue. His lordship, with the approbation of the crown, after the death of Sir John Ramsay, Viscount Haddington, changed the title of Earl of Melrose for that of EARL OF HADDINGTON, by patent of 17 Aug. 1627, but with the precedence of the original patent. This nobleman acquired by the lucrative offices he enjoyed, one of the largest fortunes of his time, which was considerably augmented by the discovery of valuable mines upon his estates. He d. 29 May, 1637, and was s. by his elder son,

THOMAS, 2nd earl, b. 25 May, 1600, who m. 1st, Katherine, 4th dau. of John, Earl of Marr, by whom he had four sons and a dau., and 2ndly, 14 Jan. 1640, Jane, 3rd dau. of George, 2nd Marquess of Huntly, by whom he left one (posthumous) dau., Margaret, m. to John, 1st Earl of Kintore. The Earl of Haddington having actively espoused the cause of the Covenanters, was unfortunately blown up in the castle of Dunglass, in co. Haddington, of which he was governor, 30 Aug. 1640, with several of his kindred and adherents, by the treachery of his page, one Paris, an English boy, who also perished. He was s. by his eldest son, THOMAS, 3rd earl; who m. in 1643 the celebrated and beautiful Henrietta de Coligny, eldest dau. of Gaspard, Comte de Coligny, and great-grand-dau. of the celebrated Adm. de Coligny, but d. in minority, s. p., 8 Feb. 1645. The countess m. 2ndly, Gaspard de Champagne, Comte de la Suze, a Huguenot nobleman, from whom she got herself separated, and turned Catholic. She d. at Paris, 10 March, 1673. He has been Constable of Launceston Castle, since 1883.

Lineage.

The name of "Giffard," which signifies the "Liberal," is of great antiquity in the county of Devon.

Of this ancient and widely-spread family the Devonshire branch (which has intermarried with some of the oldest and most distinguished families in the West of England, as notably the Courtenays, Grenvilles, Leighs of Northam, Champernownes of Dartington, Fortescues, Bamfyldes of Poltimore, Tremaynes of Collacombe, Dabernons, Corytons, Chichesters, Wyndhams of Orchard-Wyndham, and many others) deduces its descent from

Robert Giffard, described as maternally descended from the Giffards, Earls of Buckingham, settled at Whitchurch, near Tavistock, in the reign of Henry II., and was possessed of considerable property in that neighbourhood. In the reign of Henry III. the possessions of Robert Giffard had passed to Sir Walter Giffard of Weare-Giffard, whose brother, Sir Roger Giffard, of Awlescombe, Milford, and Clovelly, m. Anne, dau. of Sir William Brewer, of Buckland Brewer, and by her left three sons, Matthew, Philip, and Bartholomew. Upon the death of Matthew and Philip, s.p. male, Sir Roger's estates passed by co-heiresses to the powerful houses of Stanton and Mandeville, Weare-Giffard, Whitchurch, and Lamerton, by the marriage of Sir Walter Giffard's dau., Emma, with Sir H. Widworthy, passed to that family, and afterwards, by successive marriages, to the families of Dinham, Trewin, Filleigh, and Densell. Elizabeth Densell, by her marriage with Martin Fortescue, brought Weare-Giffard to that family, in whose possession it still remains, and thus the two elder branches of the race of Giffard became extinct. In the reign, however, of Edward I.

Bartholomew Giffard, a younger son of this family, and great-grandson of Robert Giffard, of Whitchurch, m. Jone, dau. and heiress of Peter de Halsbury*, in the parish of Parkham, and in this branch the name continued, according to Sir William Pole, through eight descents. Bartholomew Giffard was s. by his son, * Halsbury thus acquired continued to be the chief residence of the Giffards from the time of Edward I. to that of Henry VIII., in whose reign Sir Roger Giffard, Knt., founded the fortunes of the Brightleigh branch of the family. Halsbury, however, continued in the elder line till the middle of the 17th century, when John Giffard, Esq. of Halsbury, dying s. p., left Halsbury to Roger Giffard, Esq., the 2nd son of Col. Giffard, of Brightleigh. This Roger Giffard dying also s. p. left Halsbury to his great-nephew, Roger Giffard, the 2nd son of Henry Giffard, of Brightleigh. This Roger, the second inheritor of Halsbury, sold that ancient possession about the year 1750, and himself died a few years afterwards. Thus passed away from the Giffards an estate which had been in their possession for about five centuries.

* Risdon speaks of Brightleigh as follows:
"Brightleigh, about 8 miles south of Barnstable, was ancien the dwelling of William Filius Warini in the reign of Richard who was the son of Fulk Fitzwarren that had this land fr his father in the reign of King Henry II., which family aft wards assumed the name of Brightleigh from their dwellin of which tribe there were six called William, amongst wh one flourished in knight's degree. Another William Brightleigh was well learned in the laws and a governor of t county, and in the 39th year of Edward III. was chosen of the knights of the shire. From which name by the Care this land came to the name of Cobleigh, whose only daugh and heir, Magaret, was married to Sir Roger Giffard, a flourish branch of Halsbury House, who made this place a dainty s with a park thereunto belonging, which is now inherited by Jo Giffard that married the daughter of Sir John Windham, father the daughter of Leigh, his grandsire the daughter Erle of Dorsetshire."

The Cameronians (Scottish Rifles); late lieut. R.N., b. 6 March, 1862, s. his kinsman as 13th duke, 1895.

Lineage.

The Dukes of Hamilton, paternally Douglases, are maternally descended from the house of Hamilton, for a historical account of which, see Abercorn, D. of.

Of the heroic house of Douglas, the earliest known chief is William of Douglas, so called from the pastoral dale in Lanarkshire which he owned, who witnessed charters between 1175 and 1213, and was either brother, or brother-in-law, of Friskin, of Moray. He had six sons, Brice, a monk of Kelso, who, through Friskin's influence, became Bishop of Moray (1203); Alexander, who became sheriff of Elgin; and three churchmen, who respectively became archdeacon, dean, and a canon of Moray. His son and heir,

Sir Archibald, of Douglas, attained knighthood, witnessed charters between 1190 and 1232, held Hailes from the monks of Dunfermline, and had a grant of Levingston and Hirdmanston from the Earl of Fife. He is said to have acquired other lands by marriage with Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Sir John, of Crawford. From Sir Andrew Douglas, probably his younger son, sprang the important line of Dalkeith, from whom the Earls of Morton descend (see Morton, E. of).

Sir William Douglas, apparently eldest son of the last, appears on record from 1240 to 1273. In 1255 he was one of the Scottish partisans of Henry III. of England; and in 1267 is found in possession of the manor of Fawdon, in Northumberland, by gift of the king's son, afterwards Edward. He had two sons, Hugh and William.

Hugh Douglas, eldest son of the last, acquired Glencorse in Lothian, by marriage with the sister of Sir Hugh, of Abernethy, and dying s. p., circa 1287, was s. by his younger brother

Sir William Douglas, named "the Hardy." He, in 1[illegible] had his head nearly severed from his shoulders when defending his father's English manor from a foray of the men of Redesdale. In 1287 he carried off, at the head of an armed band, his future wife, Eleanora, of Lovaine, from the manor of La Zouches, at Tranent. He joined Wallace in 1297, for which her lands of Douglas were wasted, and his wife and children carried off by Robert Bruce, the young Earl of Carrick, then partisan of England. Afterwards, submitting to Edward I., he was imprisoned in York Castle, and d. there, circa 1[illegible]. He owned lands in one English and seven Scottish counties, viz., Northumberland, Berwick, Edinburgh, Fife, Lanark, Ayr, Dumfries, and Wigton. He had three sons, James, Hugh, and Archibald. The eldest.

Sir James Douglas, "the good Sir James," Bruce's companion-in-arms during the war of succession, the hero of seventy-fights, is said to have won them all but thirteen. Besides numerous charters from Robert I., of Eskdale, Galloway, Ettrick Forest, &c., he had the famous "Douglas Emerald Charter," erecting all his lands into a regality. He was slain in Andalusia, in 1303, on his way to the Holy Land with the heart of his royal master. He was unmarried, but had an illegitimate son, Archibald "the Grim," eventually 3rd Earl of Douglas.

Hugh of Douglas, brother and successor of the "Good Sir James," conveyed the family domains, in 1342, to Sir William Douglas, son of his younger brother, Archibald.

Archibald of Douglas, brother of the two last, Regent of Scotland, fell at Halidon Hill, 1333. He m. Beatrice, dau. of Sir Alexander Lindsay, of Crawford, and afterwards wife of Sir Robert Erskine, and had, John, who d. "beyond seas"; William, 1*st Earl of Douglas*; and Eleanora, who m. Sir Alexander Bruce, Earl of Carrick, s. p.; 2ndly, James Sandilands, of Calder (the descendant of which marriage, Lord Torphichen is heir general of the original Douglases); 3rdly, Sir David Wallace, of Sundrum; 4thly, Sir Patrick Hepburn, of Hailes.

Sir William of Douglas, son of the last, to whom the family possessions had been made over by his uncle in 1342, was, after distinguishing himself at Poictiers and other fields, made Earl of Douglas, in 1357. He m. Margaret, dau. of Donald, [illegible] sister of Thomas, Earl of Mar, afterwards Countess of Mar, whose right he became Earl of Mar. He d. 1384, leaving son, James, his successor in the earldom of Douglas, and dau., Isabel, who s. her mother in the earldom of Mar (see Earl of Mar). He had also an illegitimate son by Margaret Stewart, Countess of Angus, who became Earl of Angus, of whom below.

James, 2nd Earl of Douglas, s. his father, 1384, m. circa 1371, Princess Isabel, dau. of Robert III. (afterwards wife of Sir John Edmondston). The conqueror of Hotspur, he fell at Otterburn in 1388, leaving no lawful issue, but two natural sons. William, ancestor of the Queensberry branch of the house, and Archibald, a quo the Douglases, of Cavers. The earldom then devolved, according to entail, on the natural son of the "Good Sir James."

Archibald Douglas, Lord of Galloway, who became 3rd Earl of Douglas. Through his marriage with Joan, dau., and widow, of Thomas Moray, of Bothwell, he added Bothwell, Lanarkshire, and considerable lands in Ross, to the family domains, and he d. 1401, leaving two sons, Archibald, 4th, and James, eventually 7th Earl of Douglas, besides, a dau., Mary, who m. 1st, 1400, David, Duke of Rothesay; 2nd, Walter Haliburton. The 3rd Earl of Douglas had also an illegitimate son, Sir William Douglas, of Nithsdale, who m. Princess Egidia, dau. of Robert II., and was assassinated at Dantzic, 1390, leaving a dau., Egidia, m. to Henry, 2nd Earl of Orkney.

Archibald, 4th Earl of Douglas, s. 1401. From his many misfortunes in battle he was called "Tyneman." At Homildon he was severely wounded, lost an eye, and was taken prisoner by Hotspur. At Shrewsbury, after felling the English king to the ground, he was again wounded and captured. He got Annandale by charter from the Regent Albany in 1409. Repairing to France he was made Duke of Touraine by Charles VI. and fell at Verneuil in 1424. He m. Princess Margaret, dau. of Robert III., by whom he had,

Archibald, 5th Earl of Douglas, and 2nd Duke of Touraine, distinguished himself in the French wars in 1438, lieutenant of the realm, and d. 1439, having m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of the 1st Earl of Crawford, s. p.; 2ndly, Euphemia, dau. of Sir Patrick Graham and Countess Euphemia of Strathern, by whom (who m. 2ndly, in 1440, James, 1st Lord Hamilton

He m. in 1758, Margaret, dau. of James Douglas, of Mains, by whom he had no issue; and dying in 1761, his dukedom became extinct. The marquessate of Douglas and the earldom of Angus devolved on the Duke of Hamilton, the heir male. The great estates of the Douglas family became the subject of litigation between the Duke of Hamilton and Mr. Stewart, the nephew of the Duke of Douglas. This was The Douglas Cause, a celebrated lawsuit, which excited the interest of Europe. The point at issue was the filiation of Archibald Stewart, whose claim to be the son of Lady Jane Douglas and Sir John Stewart was disputed by the Duke of Hamilton. But after an unfavourable decision in the Scottish law courts, a final decision in his favour was given by the House of Lords 1771.

ARCHIBALD-JAMES-EDWARD STEWART-DOUGLAS, of Douglas, thus legally acknowledged to be heir of the Douglas family in the female line, was created a British peer as BARON DOUGLAS, of Douglas Castle, in 1790. He m. 1st, Lady Lucy Graham, dau. of William, 2nd Duke of Montrose, by whom, with other issue, he had, Archibald and Charles, 2nd and 3rd Lords Douglas, and Jane Margaret, wife of Henry-James, Lord Montague; and 2ndly, Lady Frances Scott, sister of Henry, Duke of Buccleuch, by whom, with other issue, he had a son, JAMES, 4th LORD DOUGLAS, in holy orders, who m. Wilhelmina, dau. of General the Hon. Lineage.

The Barony of Dacre was originally in the family of Vaux, whereof three brothers settled in England, at the Conquest, viz., Hubert, Ranulph, and Robert. Of these,

Hubert had the barony of Gillesland granted to him by his kinsman, Ranulph de Meschines, on whom William had conferred the whole co. of Cumberland. This Hubert was s. by his son,

Robert de Vallibus, who founded the priory of Pentney, in Normandy, and the abbey of Lanercost, in Cumberland, and was sheriff of Cumberland and governor of Carlisle, temp. Henry II. This Robert was not only a person of great valour, but also well learned in the laws of the land, and went justice-itinerant into Cumberland in the 24th year of the same monarch. Dying without issue, the feudal barony devolved upon his brother,

Ranulph de Vallibus, or Vaux, whose great-granddau. and heir,

Maud, m. Thomas de Moulton, temp. Henry III., and conveyed the barony of Gillesland to the family of her husband. The great-grandson of this marriage,

Thomas de Moulton, was summoned to parliament in the reigns of Edward I. and Edward II. He left at his decease an only dau. and heir,

Margaret de Moulton, who married

Ranulph de Dacre, one of the most distinguished persons in those parts, as well on account of his valour as a soldier, as his illustrious birth, being descended from William de Dacre, sheriff of Cumberland and governor of Carlisle, in the reign of Henry III. He was summoned to parliament, in right of his wife, from 15 May (14 Edw. II.), 1321, to 15 Nov. (12 Edw. III.), 1338, in which latter year he died, and was s. by his eldest son,

William, 2nd Baron Dacre, who was s. by his brother,

Ranulph, 3rd Baron Dacre, who was likewise s. by a brother.

Hugh, 4th Baron Dacre. This nobleman m. Ela, dau. of Sir Alexander Maxwell, Lord of Caerlaverock ; and dying in the 7th of Richard II., was s. by his son,

William, 5th baron ; who m. Joan, dau. of James, 1st Earl Douglas, and was s. by his son,

Thomas, 6th baron, summoned to parliament from 1 Dec. (14 Henry IV.) 1412, to 26 May (33 Henry VI.), 1455, as Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland. This nobleman, who was chief forester of Inglewood, in Cumberland, m. Philippa, dau. of Ralph Nevil, Earl of Westmorland, and had issue, Thomas, Ranulph, Humphrey, and Joan. Thomas, the eldest son, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Richard Bowes, and dying before his father, left an only dau. and heir, Joane ; which

Joane Dacre s. her grandfather in 1547 ; and marrying

Sir Richard Fienes, carried the barony into that family. Sir Richard was summoned to parliament from 9 Oct. (38 Henry VI.) 1459, to 15 Nov. (22 Edward IV.) 1482. He was constable of the Tower of London, lord-chamberlain to the queen-consort of Edward IV., and a privy-councillor. His lordship and his lady had great contests and disputes with Sir Humphrey Dacre, her ladyship's uncle, and the male heir of the family, concerning the lordships, manors, &c., of the late lord, which litigation was finally adjusted by the arbitration of Edward IV. That monarch, after hearing the cause, confirmed to Sir Richard and the Lady Joane, the same place and precedence that her grandfather had and enjoyed ; and also decreed to them certain lordships in Lancashire and Lincolnshire ; but Gillesland, the ancient and capital seat of the Vauxes, and of all the barons their descendants, was adjudged, together with the best of the estates in Cumberland, to Sir Humphrey Dacre. It was provided, however, in case of failure of heirs male of Sir Humphrey, that the whole estate should go to Lady Joane and her heirs. At the same time, Sir Humphrey Dacre was created Lord Dacre, of Gillesland, with place next beneath Sir Richard Fienes (who was simply styled Lord Dacre) and his lady. Sir Richard's descendants were distinguished as Lords Dacre of the South, and those of Sir Humphrey, Lords Dacre of the North. (For details, see Burke's Peerage.) Sir Richard Fienes, Lord Dacre, d. in 14[illegible] was s. by his grandson,

The last male heir, JOHN HAMPDEN, of Great Hampden, d. unm. in 1754, and is described on his stately monument as "the Twenty-fourth Hereditary Lord of Great Hampden." His half-brother and predecessor, RICHARD HAMPDEN, M.P., lost £100,000 by the South Sea Bubble, and well-nigh ruined his race. What remained of the estate was bequeathed to the Hon. Robert Trevor, grandson of Ruth, Lady Trevor, "daughter of John Hampden, slain in Chalgrove field"; and he assumed, in consequence, the surname and arms of Hampden. He s. ten years after to his father's barony of Trevor, and was created in 1776, VISCOUNT HAMPDEN, of Hampden, Bucks. His lordship was not only a diplomatist and politician, but also a distinguished classical scholar. His two sons inherited in succession the Viscounty of Hampden, but both d. s. p., as did also his daus., Maria-Constantia, Countess of Suffolk, and the Hon. Anne-Trevor Hampden.

Lineage.

The antiquity of this family is beyond dispute: manifest from the foundation of the monastery at worth that it flourished in the reign of HENRY I., appears to have assumed the surname from one o Pakingtons, in Staffordshire, Warwickshire, or Leic shire, for in each of those counties we meet with lord so designated, the proprietors of which wrote them anciently De Pakington.

ROBERT PAKINGTON, living in the reign of HENR was father of

JOHN PAKINGTON, recited in an office found before R Russel, escheator of the county of Warwick, 14 HENR He left a son of his own name,

JOHN PAKINGTON, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. heir of Thomas Washbourne, Esq. of Stanford, in county of Worcester, and had three sons, namely,

I. JOHN (Sir), of the Inner Temple, constituted chirog of the Common Pleas in the 24th of HENRY VII., d life, and elected, 11 HENRY VIII., Lent reader; a the 20th of the same reign, treasurer of the socie the Inner Temple, in which year he had a grant fro king, "that he, the said John Pakington, for the to come, shall have full liberty during his life, to his hat in his presence, and his successors, or of any persons whatsoever, and not to be uncovered on any oc or cause whatsoever, against his will and good liking that he shall not be appointed, called, or compelled to the order of knighthood, or degree, state, or order baron of the Exchequer, sergeant-at-law, or any offi incumbrance thereto relating." In 1532, he was call be sergeant-at-law, for which the king gave him a s discharge for taking the said degree, and having appointed a justice of North Wales, was, in 1535, missioned to conclude and compound all forfeitures, offe fines, and sums of money due to the king or his f HENRY VII. In 1542, he had a patent for justice of P nock, Glamorgan, and Radnor, in South Wales, durin having a grant of all the manors belonging to the mona of Westwood, in the county of Worcester, and soon received the honour of knighthood. The many honours conferred upon him are too numerous recorded here. At the time of his death, 1560, he seised of thirty-one manors, and of other lands that h purchased of seventy different persons, as appears large book concerning his estate, which was pres amongst the family testimonials. Sir John Pakin wife was Anne, widow of Tychbourne, and of the of Rolle. She d. 22 Aug. 1563. His fortune was di between his two younger brothers, Robert and Hump and his daughters,

. SIR JOHN PAKINGTON, who at the decease of his dfather inherited the estates, and resided subsequently Westwood. He was elected one of the knights Worcestershire, in the 15th CHARLES I., and when the llion broke out, was member for Ailesbury; and having all occasions given proofs both of his fidelity to the vn and the rights of the subject, was entrusted by the g, in 1642, with a commission for arraying men for his rice in Worcestershire, on account of which he was taken prisoner, committed to the Tower, and fined £5000: had his estate sequestered, his house in Buckinghamshire (one of the best in that county) levelled with the ground, and such great wastes committed in his woods, that an estimate of the loss, still remaining in the hand-writing of his lady amounts to £20,348. His zeal in the loyal cause never swerved, for notwithstanding he had suffered so much for his loyalty, he had the courage to join King CHARLES II. with a troop of horse, at the battle of Worcester, and was taken prisoner there, yet was so popular, that when afterwards tried for his life, not one witness could be procured to swear against him: he was consequently acquitted and set at liberty, but was afterwards fined £7,670, and compelled for the said fine, to convey the market-house, the tolls, the court-leet, and certain grounds called Heydon Hill, parcel of the estate at Ailesbury, to Thomas Scot (who was one of the king's judges), and other trustees, for the use of the town, which they kept until after the Restoration, when, by a special act of parliament, the said conveyances were made void. Lineage.

Of the antiquity of the Astleys there is the most unquestionable testimony; and several curious and interesting proofs are to be found in Dugdale's Warwickshire.

Sir Thomas Astley, Knt., who fell at the battle of Evesham, temp. Henry III., with Montford, Earl of Leicester, and other insurrectionary barons, founded the family. (See Burke's Extinct Peerage.) By his 1st wife, Joan, dau. of Ernald de Bois, he was father of Andrew, from whom the Astleys of Pateshull, co. Stafford, derive. By his 2nd wife, Editha, dau. of Peter Constable, Esq. of Melton Constable, co. Norfolk, and sister and co-heir of Sir Robert Constable, Knt., he had three sons; from the 2nd of whom,

Thomas Astley, of Hill Morton, co. Warwick, descended (the 7th in direct succession),

John Astley, Esq. of Hill Morton and Melton Constable, who m. Frances, dau. and heiress of John Cheyney, Esq. of Sittingbourne, in Kent, and was s. at his decease by his only surviving son,

Isaac Astley. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Edward Waldegrave, Esq. of Borley, co. Essex, and had two sons, viz.,

I. Thomas, of whom presently.
II. Jacob (Sir), who, having acquired considerable reputation under the royal standard during the civil wars, was advanced to the peerage as Baron Astley, of Reading. His lordship m. Agnes Imple, a German lady of family, and was s. in 1651, by his eldest son,

Isaac, 2nd baron, who d. 1662, and was s. by his eldest son,

Jacob, 3rd baron, at whose decease, issueless, in 1668, the barony expired.

Isaac Astley was s. by his elder son,

Thomas Astley, who m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of George Deane, Esq. of Tilney, co. Norfolk, and had issue,

Francis, his successor.
Isaac, successor to his brother.
Edward (Sir), m. his cousin, the Hon. Elizabeth Astley, dau. of Jacob, Lord Astley, and dying in 1653, left a son, Jacob, of whom presently, as representative of the family.

Thomas Astley was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Francis Astley, Knt., at whose decease, without issue, the estates devolved upon his brother,

Sir Isaac Astley, who was created a Baronet 21 Jan. 1641. Sir Isaac m. 1st, Rachel, dau. of Augustine Messenger, Esq. of Hackford, in Norfolk; and 2ndly, Bridget, dau. of John Coke, Esq. of Holkham, but had no issue. He d. in Dec. 1659, when the baronetcy expired, while the estates of Hill Morton and Melton Constable passed to his nephew,

I. Sir Jacob Astley, Knt., who was created a Baronet 25 June, 1660. Sir Jacob s. not only to the property of his uncle, but also to the entailed lands of his maternal grandfather, Lord Astley, these being so settled by Act of Parliament. He represented the co. Norfolk for forty years in parliament. He m. 1661, Blanch, eldest dau. of Sir Philip Wodehouse, Bart. of Kimberley, co. Norfolk, and dying in 1729, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

II. Sir Philip. This gentleman m. 2 Dec. 1690, Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Thomas Bransby, Esq. of Caistor, Norfolk, and had (with three younger sons, who all d. s. p., and two daus., Elizabeth, wife of Caleb Elwin, Esq. of Thirning, and Jemima, of Christopher Metcalf, Esq. of Hawsted) a son and successor at his decease, 7 July, 1739,

III. Sir Jacob, who m. 1st, in 1721, Lucy, youngest dau. of Sir Nicholas L'Estrange, Bart. of Hunstanton, co. Norfolk, and co-heir of her brother, Sir Henry,* by whom, who d. in 1739, he had (with other issue),

I. Edward, his successor.

II. John, in holy orders, m. in 1762, Catherine, dau. of Philip Bell, Esq. of Wallington in Norfolk, and d. in 1803, leaving two daus.

I. Blanch, m. to Edward Pratt, Esq. of Ryston, in Norfolk, and had, with other issue, d son,

Edward-Roger Pratt, Esq. of Ryston. (See Burke's Landed Gentry.)

SIR HENRY HAVELOCK, b. at Bishopwearmouth, co. Durham, 5 April, 1795, one of the most eminent soldiers of his time, was educated at the Charterhouse, and was originally a student of the Middle Temple. He became an officer in the British rifle-brigade in 1815, and went first to India in 1823. He there took an active part in the first Burmese war. He was a captain in 1838; and was at the storming of Ghuznee, and the occupation of Cabul: he was also at the forcing of the Cabul Pass and the battle of Tezeen; and he commanded the right column in the sortie from Jellalabad and final victorious attack on Akbar the 7th April, 1842, for which he was made a major and a C.B. After various other services, he became a lieut.-col. in 1844, and went through the Sikh war, being present at the victories of Moodkee, Ferozeshah, and Sobraon. In the Persian war he was appointed to head the second division, and commanded at the battle of Mohammerah. On his return to Calcutta, he was sent as brigadier-general to relieve Cawnpore and succour Lucknow, then sorely pressed by the mutinous Sepoys. He consequently commenced, on the 7th July, 1857, that memorable march, unparalleled in history, where, with only 1,400 British bayonets and eight guns, united to a small native force, and opposed to a countless mass of the enemy, when the slightest reverse would have been fatal, he proceeded victoriously through a country deluged with rain, from the 7th July to the 16th Sept., hurling back the foe in twelve severe engagements. Joined, on the 16th Sept., by Sir James Outram and a few more troops, he stormed Lucknow, and effected his junction with and relief of its garrison. Then pent up in the Residency and its precincts at Lucknow, he and his band, with Spartan courage and more than Spartan success, held out for two months against all the efforts of the enemy until, by the advance of Sir Colin Campbell, on the 17th Nov. 1857, a victorious rescue was achieved. For these great services as the news of them reached home, Havelock was made a major-general, the 29th Sept. 1857; and a K.C.B., the 17th Nov. 1857; and letters patent were directed, the 26th Nov. 1857, to create him a Baronet. The government also was about to grant an annuity of £1,000 for the lives of himself and his son; but the illustrious soldier did not live to obtain the baronetcy or pension. He was attacked with dysentery, brought on by the intense anxiety and fatigue he had undergone, and he died at the Dilkooska, near Lucknow, 24 Nov. 1857, and was interred the next day in the Alum-bagh. Sir Henry Havelock was the author of a History of the Burmese War, and of the War in Affghanistan. He m. 9 Feb. 1829, Hannah Shepherd, dau. of the Rev. Joshua Marshman, D.D., of Serampore, and by her (decease stated at conclusion of column) had issue,

Lineage.

his line of WYNNE is descended from a cadet of Gwydir
, in consequence of some family misunderstanding
Wales in the 16th century, and settled in London. Sir
William Segar acknowledged this to be the true descent, by exemplifying to George Wynne (for so he signed his name), the ancestor of Lord Headley's family, the armorial ensigns of the WYNNES of Gwydir.

GEORGE WYNNE (to whom, being draper to Queen ELIZABETH, a patent of arms was granted in 1604) is the first member of the English branch of whom we find any particular mention. He was born about the year 1560, and d. in 1610. He m. Margaret Green, of London, and had,

EDMUND WYNNE, of Thornton Curteis, in Lincolnshire, who was b. in 1583, and d. in 1645. He m. Mary, dau. of Rowland Berkeley, of the city of Worcester, Esq., and sister of Sir Robert Berkeley, Knt., one of the judges of the court of King's Bench, by whom he had,

GEORGE, b. in 1607; of whom presently.
Rowland, an alderman of London, b. in 1609; d. in 1676.
Mark, of Little Warley, Essex, b. in 1611; d. in 1699.
Katherine.
Margaret, m. to Roger Fletcher, citizen of London.
Mary, m. to Thomas Glover, citizen of London.
Joyce, m. to John Ramsden, merchant in Hull.
Anne, m. to John Aynsworth, merchant of London.

The eldest son,

GEORGE WINN, Esq., high-sheriff of co. Lincoln, in 1657, proved himself a devoted Royalist. At the Restoration, the title of Baronet was conferred by CHARLES II. on his faithful subject, as Sir George Winn, of Nostel, in the co. of York. Sir George was m. thrice: 1st, to Rachel, dau. of John Turner, of Ham, Surrey, Esq., by whom he had no issue; 2ndly, to Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Jeffreys, Esq., alderman of London, by whom he had,

1. EDMUND, his successor, b. in 1644, served as high sheriff, of Lincolnshire in 1671. Sir Edmund was twice married, and by his 2nd wife, Katharine, had issue three sons and three daus., viz., 1 Sir Rowland, his successor; 2 Edmund, of Ackton, in the county of York, Esq., who was bapt. 2 Dec. 1678 (the grandfather of Sir Edmund-Mark the 6th bart.); and 3 George, a Smyrna merchant, who was bapt. 19 Aug. 1680, and d. unm. in 1708. The daus. were, 1 Elizabeth, who m. 1st, Joseph Taylor, of the Inner Temple, Esq.; and 2ndly, Dr. Charles Trimnell, bishop of Winchester; 2 Katharine; and 3 Sarah; who both d. unm. Sir Edmund d. 30 Aug. 1694. His eldest son,

SIR ROWLAND WINN, of Nostel, the 3rd baronet, was b. 1 July, 1675, and m. Letitia, dau. and co-heiress of William Harbord, Esq. (sometime the English ambassador in Turkey), by whom he had issue three sons and four daus., viz., 1 SIR ROWLAND, his successor; 2 Edmund-Harbord, bapt. 8 May, 1709, who was a colonel of the 1st regiment of foot-guards, and d. unm. 25 May, 1763; and 3 Edward, bapt. 2 Nov. 1714, who d. unm. 1730. The daus. were, 1 Katharine, m. to Sir Samuel Barnardiston, of Ketton, in Suffolk, Bart.; 2 Letitia; 3 Anne-Elizabeth; and 4 Mary; all of whom d. unm. Sir Rowland and his wife both died at Bath in Feb. 1721. Their eldest son, SIR ROWLAND WINN, of Nostel, the 4th baronet, b. in 1706, was high-sheriff of the county of York in 1732, and in the following year joint candidate with Charles Turner, Esq., in a very severe contest for the representation of that county in parliament, but owing to a misunderstanding between their friends Sir Rowland was unsuccessful. He m. in Aug. 1729, Susannah (sister of the 1st wife of Sir Edward Dering, Bart., and dau. and co-heiress of Charles Henshaw, of Eltham, in Kent, Esq., alderman and lord mayor of London, by his wife, Elizabeth, the only child and heiress of Edward Rooper, Esq., of the very ancient family of that name, settled at St. Dunstan's near Canterbury, and afterwards at Eltham aforesaid), by whom he had three sons and six daus., viz., 1 Sir Rowland, his successor; 2 Edward, of Bramham, in the county of York, who was bapt. 1 April, 1740, and d. unm. 13 Sept. 1832; and 3 Charles, bapt. 24 March, 1741, who d. an infant. The daus. were 1 Susannah; 2 Mary; 3 Charlotte, who all d. unm.; 4 Katharine, who m. Nathaniel Cholmley, of Whitby, in the county of York; 5 Elizabeth-Letitia, who was m. to Sir George Strickland, 5th bart. of Boynton; and 6 Ann, who was the 1st wife of her cousin, George Winn, afterwards Lord Headley. Sir Rowland d. 23 Aug. 1765. His eldest son.

SIR ROWLAND WINN, of Nostel, the 5th baronet, was bapt. 24 Feb 1739, and m. Sabine-Louise, only dau. and heiress of Jacques Phillippe, Baron d'Hervert, governor of Vevay, in Switzerland, by whom he had a son, Sir Rowland, his successor, and a dau., Esther, who was b. 26 Nov. 1768, was twice married, and d. in Dec. 1803, leaving issue by her 1st husband, John Williamson, two sons and one dau., viz., John, Charles, and Louisa. Sir Rowland d. 20 Feb. 1785. The son and heir, SIR ROWLAND WINN, of Nostell, aforesaid, the 6th baronet, was b. 13 June, 1775; served the office of high-sheriff of the county of York in 1799; and d. on th 13th of October, 1805, intestate and unmarried, on which the family estates descended eventually to his nephew, John (Williamson) Winn, Esq., whose brother and heir was CHARLES WINN, Esq. of Nostell, who d. 17 Dec. 1874.

leaving by Priscilla, his wife, dau. of Sir William Strickland, Bart., a son and heir, ROWLAND WINN, Esq., of Nostel Priory, M.P., created 1885, Lord St. Oswald (see that title).

The baronetcy devolved on the male heir,

SIR EDMUND-MARK WINN, of Ackton, in the county of York, the 7th baronet, who was b. 15 Aug. 1762; and d. in 1833, when the baronetcy devolved on his kinsman, CHARLES WINN, 2nd Lord Headley.

II. GEORGE, b. in 1645, whose grandson was raised to the Irish peerage in 1797, as Lord Headley.
III. Robert, }
IV. Mark, } of whom no descendants now remain.
V. Rowland, }

Sir George was m. 3rdly, to Anne, dau. of Sir William Pelham, of Brocklesby, in Lincolnshire, Knt., but by her he had no issue. He d. in 1667. At his death, his eldest son, EDMUND, s. to the title, which in 1805 devolved on his great-grandson Sir Edmund-Mark Winn, of Acton, in the co. of York, the 7th baronet, at whose decease, in Aug. 1833, it fell to his cousin, the late and 2nd Lord Headley. Sir George's (the 1st baronet) 2nd son,

GEORGE WINN, Esq. of South Ferraby, in Lincolnshire, m. Sarah, dau. of Charles Pelham, Esq., of Brocklesby, in that co. (ancestor of the Earl of Yarborough), and had issue,

PELHAM WINN, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of the Rev. Gilbert Wighton, by Elizabeth Allanson, his wife, sister of William Allanson and Charles Allanson, Esq., of Sion, in Middlesex (and great granddau. of Sir William Allanson, who was lord-mayor of York in 1633, and knighted in May, by CHARLES I., who was then in his passage through that city to be crowned in his native country); by this lady, Mr. Winn had an only son, GEORGE WINN, Esq., b. in 1725, of whom it is the pride of his family to speak as an instance of rare success and celebrity under no common difficulties. He s. in 1763 to the estates of his cousin, Mark Winn, Esq. of Little Warley, in the co. of Essex, and in 1775, to those of his cousin, Charles Allanson, Esq. of Bramham Biggin, co. York, who was the only son of the above-named William Allanson, Esq., and d. leaving no issue. Mr. Winn was created a Baronet, 14 Sept. 1776, owing to the eminence of his talents and exertions as an English baron of the court of Exchequer in Scotland; and in the same year he obtained licence and authority to assume the name and armorial bearings of ALLANSON. On 27 Nov. 1797, Sir George was raised to the peerage of Ireland, by the style and title of LORD HEADLEY, BARON ALLANSON AND WINN, of Aghadoe, in the co. of Kerry. His lordship m. 1st, in 1765, Anne, 4th dau. of Sir Rowland Winn, Bart., of Nostell, in the co. of York (son of Sir Rowland, the son of Sir Edmund, eldest son of Sir George, the 1st baronet), by whom he had issue, an only dau., Georgiana-Anne, b. 1769, d. in 1782. Lineage.

The period of the first settlement of the family of Heneage in co. Lincoln may be nearly defined by the circumstance of Sir Robert de Heneage being witness, together with Sir Richard de Angemine, of the same co., and several others, to a grant of land temp. William Rufus, from Nicholas Bassett to the monks of Brucria.

John de Heneage (son of Sir William de Heneage, knt., grandson of Walter de Heneage, and great-grandson of John de Heneage, living temp. Henry III), appears, by deed, to have been possessed of the manor of Haynton, in co. Lincoln, 10 Edward III. John de Heneage was the last who styled himself de Heneage. He was s., 6th in descent, by John Heneage (who s. his father, John Heneage), and was himself s. in 1530, by his son,

Thomas Heneage, who was private secretary to Cardinal Wolsey, and afterwards master of the household to Henry VIII. He was knighted at the installation of Prince Edward as Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall, and was present with Henry VIII at the "Winning of Bulloyne." He was s. by his nephew,

George Heneage, in 1553, who was member for Grimsby. He commanded the forces in the suppression of the rebels in Ireland during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and was attached to the households of Edward VI, Mary I, and Queen Elizabeth: was vice-admiral of the co. Lincoln, and was knighted 1585. He d. 1595, and was s. by his 3rd brother,

William Heneage, Esq. of Benworth, m. Anne, dau. and co-heir of Ralph Fishbourne, of Fishbourne, co. Durham, and had (with two daus., Anne, m. Nicholas Wilson, of Sheepwash; and Catherine, m. William Ayscough) two sons, Thomas (Sir), his heir; and George (Sir), m. Mary, dau. of John Bussy. The elder son,

Lineage.

Assuming the theory of the Heralds' College, London, that WALTER DE EURUS, or D'EVEREUX, Count of Rosmar, was ancestor of DEVEREUX, Earl of Salisbury (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage), it is presumed that WILLIAM D'EVEREUX, who, according to Ordericus Vitalis, held lands in cos. Hereford and Gloucester (under Lacy) at the Survey, fought at Hastings, and was ancestor of the existing families of DEVEREUX in England and Ireland. The first of the name who appears in England was WILLIAM DE EVEROUS, who, with Helewyse his wife (probably a De Laci), granted lands temp. WILLIAM I., to St. Peter's Abbey, co. Gloucester. R. DE EUROIS appears in the foundation Charter of St. John's, of Brecknock, temp. HENRY I., and in Domesday Book as holding land under W. de Scohies in Norfolk. ROBERT DE EBROIS had lands in Cornwall, and his son, Reginald, appears in the great Roll of the Pipe, 35 HENRY I. and 5 King STEPHEN. WALTER DE EUREUS is named in the Pipe Rolls of 6 and 10

Henry II. in cos. of Hereford and Wilts. In the Plea Rolls of 5 Richard I., Walter de Everous appears as paying three marks for novel disseisen; in 1210 he accompanied King John to Ireland, the next year he held half a knight's fee in the Honor of Brecknock, and at the same time a Robert de Euerous held one-third of a knight's fee in the honor of Kineton Lacy.

Stephen d'Evereux, in the 17th of King John had all the lands of Stoke, Tatington, Bullinghope, &c., which had been formerly the possession of Walter d'Evereux. He was seated at Rotherwas and Home Lacy, 2 Henry III., and in conjunction with his wife, Isabella de Cantilupe, granted lands in Stoke to the Priory of Wormesley and the church of Lyonshall. In the 5th of same reign he had a suit against Walter D'Evereux regarding half a knight's fee in Bodenham. He was dead in 12 Henry III.,

Stephen Deverois, Lord of Bodenham and Whitechurch, 1331, was son of Walter and Marion. He had three sons, William his heir, Walter, and John (Sir). Stephen Deverois was s. by his son,

William Deverois, sheriff co. Hereford, 46 Edward III. in the 49th of same reign he gave up his right in Whitechurch to his brother, and the following year his widow released her right to

Sir Walter Deverois, to whom the king committed the forests and castles of the Earl of Hereford, 10 Richard II. He m. Agnes de Crophull, and by her (who m. 2ndly, Parr, of Kendall. and 3rdly, John Merbury, and d. 14 Henry VI.) had five sons, Walter, his heir; Richard; John; Stephen; Roger; and a dau., Joan, m. Thomas Swyneford. He was slain at Pilleth, against Owen Glendwr, 4 Henry IV., and was s. by his son,

Lineage.

SIR JOHN DE MACUSWELL (eldest son of HERBERT DE MACCUSWELL, who flourished under MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM I.) was sheriff of the co. Roxburghe in 1203 and 1207. He was afterwards (15 June, 1220) one of the guarantees to the marriage contract between ALEXANDER II. and the Princess JOAN of England, and he assisted at the royal nuptials. Sir John Macuswell acquired the barony of Karlaverock, and was constituted Great Chamberlain of Scotland in 1231. His son and heir,

EUMERUS DE MACUSWELL, of Karlaverock, was Great Chamberlain of Scotlaud in 1258. He m. Mary, dau. and heiress of Roland de Mearns, and acquired thereby the barony and castle of Mearns. By her he had two sons,

HERBERT (Sir), his heir.
John (Sir), upon whom his father conferred the barony of Nether-Pollock, co. Renfrew.

The elder son,

SIR HERBERT DE MAXESWELL, who sat in the Parliament of Scone (5 Feb. 1283-4), when the nobles agreed to acknowledge the "MAIDEN OF NORWAY" as Queen of Scotland, was grandfather of Sir Eustace Maxwell, the gallant defender of Carlaverock against King Edward I. From him descended the Maxwells, Lords Herries of Terregles, and Earls of Nithsdale.

Lady Winifred Maxwell, only dau. and heiress of Wm. Lineage.

Edward Seymour, 1st Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector in the reign of Edward VI., had, by his first wife Katherine, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Fillol, of Fillol's, Hall, Essex, two sons, namely, Edward (Sir).

John, who d. s.p., leaving his estate to his brother.

The elder,

Sir Edward Seymour, who received the honour of knighthood for his conduct in the battle of Musselburgh, and was seated at Berry Pomeroy, in Devonshire, obtained, in the 7th Edward VI., an act of parliament restoring him in blood, so far as to enable him to enjoy lands that might subsequently come to him from any collateral ancestor. Sir Edward was sheriff of Devon in the 25th Elizabeth. He m. Mary, dau. of Mr. Justice Walsh, of the court of Common Pleas, and was s. by his son,

Edward Seymour, Esq., of Berry Pomeroy, M.P. for Devon, created a Baronet, 29 June, 1611. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Arthur Champernon, Knt. of Dartington, in Devonshire, and dying 11 April, 1613, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Edward Seymour, 2nd baronet; who had received the honour of knighthood from James I., and was returned to two parliaments by the co. of Devon in that monarch's reign. In the latter part of his life he lived in retirement at the castle of Berry Pomeroy, upon which he is said to have expended upwards of £20,000. He m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir Henry Killigrew; and dying in 1659, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Edward Seymour, 3rd baronet, M.P. for the co. Devon, in the last two parliaments of Charles I. Adhering to that unhappy prince, Sir Edward had his seat, Bury Castle (the ancient abode of the Pomeroys), plundered and burnt to the ground. He m. Anne, dau. of Sir William Portman, and dying 7 Dec. 1688, was s by his eldest son,

Sir Edward Seymour, 4th baronet. This gentleman made a distinguished figure, both in court and parliament, during four successive reigns. He served constantly after his first election to the time of his death, and few had more weight in the House of Commons. In 1667, he promoted the impeachment of Lord Clarendon: was the first that moved it, and carried it up to the House of Lords. In Feb. 1672-3, he was unanimously chosen speaker of the Long Parliament, on the resignation of

Sir Job Charlton. In the April following he was sworn of the privy council, and soon after made treasurer of the navy, Burnet describes Sir Edward as "the ablest man of his party, the first speaker of the House of Commons that was not bred to the law; a graceful man, bold and quick, and of high birth, being the elder branch of the Seymour family." He m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Wall, Knt., an alderman of the city of London, by whom he had two sons, and was s. in the baronetcy by the elder EDWARD, whose eldest son, EDWARD, inherited the Dukedom of Somerset. Sir Edward m. 2ndly, Letitia, dau. of Alexander Popham, Esq. of Littlecote, co. Wilts, and had issue, POPHAM, FRANCIS, and Charles, whose only dau. and heir, Jane Seymour, was wife of Admiral Lynn. Sir Edward's eldest son by his 2nd marriage,

POPHAM SEYMOUR, Esq., inherited the estates of his cousin, Edward Conway, Earl of Conway who (d. s. p.), under the will of the said earl, dated 19 Aug. 1683; and assumed, in consequence, the surname of CONWAY. This gentleman fell in a duel with Colonel Kirk, June, 1699; and dying unm., those estates devolved upon his next brother,

FRANCIS SEYMOUR, Esq., b. 28 May, 1679, who also assumed the surname and arms of CONWAY, and was elevated to the peerage of England 17 March, 1703, as Lord Conway, Baron Conway of Ragley, co. Warwick. Part of his extensive inheritance being situated in the north of Ireland, his lordship was created a peer of that kingdom likewise, 16 Oct. 1712, by the title of Baron Conway of Killultagh, co. Antrim. He did not however, take his seat in the Irish House of Lords, until Oct. 1721. In Oct. 1727, he was sworn of the privy council of Ireland; and in the following year constituted governor of Carrickfergus. His lordship m. 1st, 17 Feb. 1703, Mary, 3rd dau. of Lawrence Hyde, Earl of Rochester, by whom (who d. 25 Jan. 1709) he had four daus.; the second of whom, Mary, m. Nicholas Price, Esq. of Saintfield, co. Down. Lord Conway m. 2ndly, Jane Bowden, of Drogheda, by whom he had a son, who d. in infancy, and a dau. who d. unm.; and 3rdly, July, 1718, Charlotte, dau. of John Shorter, Esq. of Bybrook, Kent, son of Alderman Sir John Shorter, Knt., lord-mayor of London in 1688, and sister-in-law of the celebrated minister, Sir Robert Walpole, afterwards Earl of Orford, by whom he had (with three daus., one of whom Anne, m. John Harris, Esq. of Hayne, Devon), four sons; of whom,

I. FRANCIS, s. to the honours.

II. Henry, bapt. at Ragley, 12 Aug. 1719, was a general-officer in the army and commanded with high reputation, the British forces in Germany, under Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick, in 1761, during the absence of the Marquess of Granby. He was one of the grooms of the bedchamber but was dismissed from that office and his military commands, in 1764, for voting against the ministry on the great question of general warrants. In 1765, he was sworn of the privy council, and appointed secretary of state for the northern department. General Seymour-Conway m. 19 Dec. 1747, Caroline, widow of Charles Bruce, Earl of Aylesbury, and only dau. of Lieut.-Col. John Campbell, afterwards 4th Duke of Argyll. Lineage.

e family of Hood possessed considerable landed property in
co. of Dorset more than two centuries ago.
HE REV. SAMUEL HOOD, vicar of Butley, Somersetshire, and wards of Thorncombe, co. Devon (2nd son of Alexander d, Esq. of Mosterton, co. Dorset), m. Mary, dau. of Richard kyns, Esq. of Beaminster, co. Dorset, and had issue, SAMUEL, of whom presently; Alexander, admiral of the Red, created LORD BRIDPORT (see BRIDPORT, VISCOUNT); and Elizabeth, m. to Alderman Edward Walker, of Exeter. The elder son,

ADMIRAL SIR SAMUEL HOOD, K.B., a famous British seaman, was b. at Thorncombe, 12 Dec. 1724, and entered the royal navy in 1740. His first exploit was in 1759, when he took the "Bellona." Lord Anson presented the victor to GEORGE II., who gave him the command of the "Africa." Hood, early in 1782, made the first attack on the Count de Grasse's fleet, and he commanded the van division under Sir George Rodney, on the 12th Aug. 1782, when the Count de Grasse and his fleet were so memorably defeated. In 1793, Hood, commanding the Mediterranean fleet, signalized himself by his victorious attack on Toulon, and his capture of the island of Corsica. He was made governor of Greenwich Hospital in 1796, and in 1799 became admiral of the Red and G.C.B. He had long previously been created a Baronet, as a reward for achievements, 20 May, 1778, and elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 12 Sept. 1782, as Baron Hood, of Catherington. His lordship was enrolled among the peers of Great Britain 1 June, 1796, by the title of VISCOUNT HOOD, of Whitley, co. Warwick. SIR CHRISTOPHER ST. LAWRENCE, 14th baron, who got an Act of Parliament, 29 HENRY VI., granting him licence to search for a mine in his lordship of Howth; and was appointed by commission dated at Naas, 18 June, 1 EDWARD IV., one of the Justices of the Peace for the co. Dublin. By Elizabeth Bermingham, his wife, he had five sons and three daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ROBERT ST. LAWRENCE, the 15th baron; who was appointed 23 Feb. 1467, chancellor of the green-wax of the Exchequer; and constituted, 10 July, 1483, LORD CHANCELLOR OF IRELAND. His lordship m. Joan, 2nd dau. of Edward Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, by whom he had four sons and two daus.: and the deed of feoffment by which he settled all his estate on trustees for the uses and purposes of that marriage, and which contains most of the names of the prime nobility of England, as the lady's trustees, is duly enrolled in Ireland. By this marriage Lord Howth's descendants derived descent from EDWARD III., and became inheritors of the blood royal. The 2nd son, Thomas, was appointed, in 1532, attorney-general of Ireland; and in 1535, second justice of the court of King's Bench. He left an only dau., Margaret, m. to William, son of Patrick Birmingham, chief-justice of the King's Bench in 1530. Sir Robert was s. by his eldest son,

SIR NICHOLAS ST. LAWRENCE, the 16th baron. This nobleman, for his fidelity to HENRY VII., in the affair of Lambert Simnal, was presented by that monarch with three hundred pieces of gold, and confirmed by charter, dated 4 March, 1489, in the lands of Howth, &c. He subsequently attended the Lord-Deputy Kildare at the famous battle of Knocktough, in Connaught, fought against the Irish 19 Aug. 1504, when his lordship headed the billmen on foot. Sir Nicholas was made LORD CHANCELLOR OF IRELAND 10 June, 1509; and dying in 1526, was s. by his eldest son by his 1st wife, Genet, only dau. of Sir Christopher Plunkett, 3rd Lord of Killeen.

Lineage.

This illustrious house, so renowned in the cabinet and the field, derives its surname from the seaport of Hastings, in Sussex (the lastage of which its senior members farmed for many years from the crown), and deduces its pedigree from Robert de Hastings, Portgrave of Hastings, Lord of Fillongley, in Warwickshire, and dispensator, or steward, to WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR. The successor of this Robert was

WALTER DE HASTINGS, who became steward to HENRY I, as owner of the manor of Ashill, co. Norfolk, a grant from the crown, upon the condition of taking care of the naperie (table-linen) at the coronation. From this Walter descended

HENRY, LORD HASTINGS, who m. Ada, 4th dau. of David, Earl of Huntingdon, by Maud, dau. of Hugh, sister and co-heir of Ranulph, Earl of Chester (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article MESCHINES, Earls of Chester), and was s. by his only son,

HENRY, LORD HASTINGS, who, adhering to Simon Montfort, Earl of Leicester, against HENRY III, was knighted, and made governor, by that nobleman, of the castles of Scarborough and Winchester in 1264, and in the following year of Kenilworth Castle. This feudal baron m. Joane, dau. of William, and sister and co-heir of George de Cantilupe, Barons of Bergavenny; and dying in 1268, was s. by his elder son,

JOHN DE HASTINGS, Lord Hastings and Bergavenny, seneschal of Aquitaine, and, in 1290, one of the aspirants to the Scottish throne in right of his grandmother, Ada, who was niece to MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM THE LION, Kings of Scotland. This nobleman had summons to parliament from 1295 to the time of his death. He m. Isabel, dau. of William, and sister and co-heir of Aylmer de Valence, Earls of Pembroke, by whom he had two sons and three daus.; the second of which daus., Elizabeth, m. Roger, Lord Grey de Ruthyn. His lordship m. 2ndly, Isabel, 5th dau. of Hugh Despenser, Earl of Winchester, and had two sons. He d. 9 March, 1312-13, and was s. by the elder son of the first marriage,

JOHN, LORD HASTINGS, Bergavenny and Weishford, governor of Kenilworth Castle in 1323; who d. in 1325, and was s. by his only son,

LAURENCE, who, upon the decease of his grand-uncle, Aylmer de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, s. p., was created Earl of Pembroke, by patent dated 13 Oct. 1339; a dignity that expired with John, 3rd earl, who was accidentally slain in a tournament by Sir John St. John, at Woodstock. This terminated the elder branch of the noble house of Hastings; but a younger, deriving from

THOMAS DE HASTINGS, great-grandson of Walter de Hastings, steward to HENRY I. and elder son of William de Hastings, by his 2nd wife, Ida, dau. of Henry, Earl of Ewe, laid the foundation of the present Earldom of Huntingdon. From this Thomas lineally descended

SIR WILLIAM DE HASTINGS, Knt., who was nominated by EDWARD IV. master of the Mints at London and Calais, steward of the honour of Leicester, and of the manors and castles of Donnington, Higham Ferrers, and Daventry; and created by the same monarch, 26 July, 1461, Baron Hastings of Ashby-de-la-Zouch, when his lordship was installed a knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter. His lordship m. Catharine, relict of William, Lord Bonvile and Harington, and dau. of Richard Nevil, Earl of Salisbury, by whom he had four sons and two daus. In 1465, we find this nobleman entering into an agreement with Dame Elizabeth Grey, late wife of Sir John Grey, Knt., and heir of Edward Grey, late Lord Ferrers, that he should have the wardship of her son, Thomas, afterwards Marquess of Dorset, on whose part it was stipulated that he should, within five or six years afterwards, marry the eldest dau. of Lord Hastings that might then be living. His lordship about this time undertook, in his capacity of master of the Mint, a new coinage of gold, consisting of pieces of eight shillings and fourpence sterling each, called nobles; other pieces of one-half; and a third, of one-fourth that value. For several years afterwards Lord Hastings was one of the most powerful persons in the kingdom. In 1474, he obtained a license from EDWARD IV. to impark three thousand acres of land and wood in Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and he accordingly built, at Ashby, a magnificent castle for the residence of his family, which it continued to be for two hundred years. This castle was afterwards remarkable as the temporary prison of MARY, Queen of Scots. Of his lordship FULLER says: "The reader needeth not m candle to direct him to this illustrious person, whom EDWARD IV., or rather Edward Plantagenet (because in human than in his royal capacity), so delighted i he made him his lord-chamberlain, Baron Hastir Ashby-de-la-Zouch," &c. Lord Hastings fell a v eventually, to the Protector Gloucester (RICHARD and was beheaded in the Tower, 13 June, 1483, wh estates were confiscated, but soon afterwards res partly by RICHARD and the remainder by HENRY V his son,

EDWARD, K.B., 2nd baron; who having m. Mary and sole heir of Thomas, Baron Hungerford, Bot Moulins, and Moels, had been summoned to parlia 15 Nov. 1482, as Lord Hungerford. By this union hi ship had a dau., Anne, who became the wife of T Stanley, Earl of Derby, and after his decease, of John cliffe, Lord Fitz-Walter; and a son, his successor, demise, 8 Nov. 1507,

GEORGE, 3rd baron. This nobleman attended HENRY in 1513, at the taking of Terouenne and Tournay, an created by that monarch, 8 Dec. 1529, EARL OF HU DON. His lordship m. Anne, dau. of Henry Staffor Duke of Buckingham, and widow of Sir Walter He Knt.; and dying 24 March, 1544, was s. by his eldest FRANCIS, 2nd Earl, K.G.; who m. in 1532, Katherin and co-heir of Henry Pole, Lord Montagu, and grandc Margaret, Countess of Salisbury (which Margaret wa and sole heir of George Plantagenet, Duke of Cla brother of EDWARD IV.). Lineage.

The great antiquity and high respectability of this family are clearly proved by an ancient and copious pedigree, preserved in the College of Arms, accompanied by a great number of family deeds, fines, wills, &c., to several of which are affixed their seals of arms; which pedigree is continued down to the Visitation of 1620, in the reign of King JAMES I. The first ancester we find on record is in the year 1103, being the third year of the reign of King HENRY I., when Galfridus Miles had his seat at Northcote, in the parish of East Down, in the co. of Devon. He was s. by John, his son, styled "Johannes, filius Johannis Galfride Miles, habitantis in Northcote, in parochia de East Down, in Devon; mutavit nomen cum loco." Thus, says an ancient record, late in the possession of Thomas Wescote, gent. This John was s. by Galfridus de Northcote, in 1118, of whom it is observed, "Galfridus de Northcote tenet in Northcote unum fœdium de Abbate de Tavistock in manerio de Burington et hundred de North Tawnton." He held lands also in Colston, in Witheridge Hundred, and had two sons, viz., WILLIAM and Walter. William de Northcote, eldest son, m. Margarite de Afeton, dau. of Robert de Afeton, in 1190, the issue of which marriage were three sons, viz., Walter, ANDREW, and Edmund. Andrew de Northcote, the 2nd son, m. Matilda Faber, eldest dau. of Peter Faber, of Bovytracy, in Devon, in the 17th year of the reign of King EDWARD I., and had issue three sons, viz., WILLIAM, Robert, and Edmund. WILLIAM DE NORTHCOTE, the eldest son, m. Matilda Hillion, dau. and heiress of Robert Hillion, 19th EDWARD II. (1325), and had two sons, viz., JOHN and Andrew. He was s. by the eldest son, JOHN DE NORTHCOTE, who, in 1343, being the 16th year of the reign of King EDWARD III., m. Johanna Meoles, the 2nd dau. and co-heir of Roger Meoles, by his wife Avis, sole heir to Sir William le Prouse. The family of Northcote gained great possessions by this marriage, and her two sisters being also married, the eldest to John Damerel, the youngest to Wibery, a great inheritance was divided amongst them, as may be seen by a writ of partition, dated in the 14th year of King EDWARD III.; the issue of this marriage were two sons, viz., JOHN, and Robert. From the elder, John, descended,

JOHN NORTHCOTE, Esq. of Crediton, named in the Herald's Visitation of Devon, living 12 HENRY VIII., m. Alice, dau. of John Durk, and was father of

WALTER NORTHCOTE, Esq. of Crediton, who m. Elizabeth dau. of Richard Hill, Esq. of Shilston, co Devon, and had (with two younger sons, Robert, d. s. p., Philip, m. Julian, dau. of Tresilian of Tresilian, co. Cornwall) an eldest son,

JOHN NORTHCOTE, Esq. of Crediton, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Dowrish, Esq. of Dowrish, and had issue,

Lineage.

This family (one of the few native Irish houses at present to be found in the peerage of Ireland) deduces its descent from the royal line of Thomond, a race of princes of whom was the celebrated Irish monarch,

BRIAN BOROIHME, who commenced his reign in 1002, and terminated it with his life at the battle of Clontarf, in 1014, Brian Boroihme's grandson,

TURLOGH, King of Munster, and principle King of Ireland, d. A.D. 1086, leaving four sons, viz.,

I. Teige, King of Munster, d. 1086.
II. Mortogh, King of Munster, d. at Lismore 1119. From MAHON, his 2nd son, sprang the MACMAHONS of Corcabiskin and Clonderlaw, co. Clare, of which family Marshal MACMAHON, Duc de Magenta, is a descendant.
III. DERMOT, King of Munster, ancestor of the O'BRIENS, Lords Inchiquin.
IV. Donogh, killed A.D. 1103.
I. More, wife of Roderic O'Conor, King of Connaught.

From Dermot, King of Munster, descended

CONNOR O'BRYEN, inaugurated King of Thomond in 1528. He d. 1540, when his son, Donough, was set aside, and the principality usurped by his brother.

MURROUGH O'BRYEN, who surrendered his royalty to King HENRY VIII., and was in consequence by that monarch created by patent dated 1 July, 1543, Earl of Thomond for life, with remainder, for life also, to his deposed nephew, Donough O'Bryen. Murrough O'Brien was also created by the same patent Baron of Inchiquin, with remainder to the heirs male of his body. By another patent of the same date, 1 July, 1543, Murrough's nephew, Donough, was created Baron of Ibrackan, to him and the heirs male of his body; and the Earldom of Thomond, after recital of the previous grant, was again granted to Donough for his life, immediately after the death of his uncle, Murrough. Earl Murrough d. 1551, when the earldom of Thomond devolved, according to the grants in both patents, upon the said, DONOUGH, 2nd Earl of Thomond, who surrende patent to EDWARD VI, and obtained a new remainder to the heirs male of his body, by p 7 Nov. 1552. IVEAGH.

Iveagh, Baron (Sir Edward-Cecil Guinness, K.P., LL.D.), of Iveagh, co. Down, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom, and a Baronet, D.L. for Dublin City, Hon. LL.D. Trin. Coll., Dublin, b. 10 Nov. 1847; m. 20 May, 1873, Adelaide-Maria, dau. of the late Richard-Samuel Guinness, Esq. of Deepwell, co. Dublin, M.P., by Katherine-Frances, his wife, dau. of Sir Charles Jenkinson, 10th bart. of Hawkesbury, and has issue,

I. Rupert-Edward-Cecil, lieut. 1st London R.V., b. 29 March, 1874. II. Arthur-Ernest, b. 2 Nov. 1876.
III. Walter-Edward, b. 29 March, 1880.

His lordship, 3rd son of the late Sir Benjamin-Lee Guinness, Bart., and brother of Arthur-Edward, Lord Ardilaun, was created a Bart., 27 May, 1885, and raised to the Peerage, 19 Jan. 1891.

Lineage.

The territory of Iveagh in Dalradia (now co. Down), was in early times the appendage of the family of Magennis. In 1380, when Edmund Mortimer arrived in Ireland, various native chiefs waited upon him, and amongst others, Art Magennis "the Lord of Iveagh." The name occurs in the public records of Ireland at a very early period, and its various forms of spelling, FitzGuennys, McGuinez, Guinez, Guineys, are given in the State Papers of Ireland, viz.: "As to the rest that cam over with him (O'Neyll, Earl of Tyrone) we made McGuinez, Knight, soo as now he must be called Sir Dol Guinez, and also made Arthur Guinez, Knight." (Calendar of State Papers, 1542, p. 429.) In the reign of James I. Sir Arthur Magennis, of Rathfriland, in the co. Down, was created Viscount Magennis of Iveagh in the Peerage of Ireland. That title is supposed to have become extinct in 1693.

Should at any future time a descendant of the Viscounts Magennis be able to establish a right to their Viscounty of Magennis, the new creation of Baron Iveagh would in no way clash. There would simply be a Viscount Magennis and Baron Iveagh, the former a Viscount of Ireland, the latter Baron of the United Kingdom.

Richard Guinness, of Celbridge, in the co. of Kildare about 1680, the great-great-grandfather of Lord Iveagh described in a Bill in Equity Exchequer, 10th Feb. 1746 "Richard Guinis, Agent or Receiver to the Most Rev. Art Price, Archbishop of Cashel," and is therein authorised demise episcopal lands. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Wm. R Esq., of Hutton Read, co. I. John Kennaway, Esq. (descended from William Kennaway, Esq., a merchant, by Joyce, dau. of Sir William Bastard, of Garston, co. Devon), having entered early into the service of the Hon. East India Company, received his commission as captain in 1780, and served in the Bengal part of the grand army, commanded by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Eyre Coote, KB. in the Carnatic, during the invasion of Hyder Ali, until the battle and siege of Cuddalore. A general peace soon after taking place, Captain Kennaway returned to Bengal; was appointed, in 1786, aide-de-camp to Marquess Cornwallis, and sent by his lordship, in 1788, as envoy to the court of Hyderabad, to demand from the Nizam the cession of the maritime province of Guntoor, which, contrary to treaty, had for many years remained in his highness's possession. Captain Kennaway was in this embassy eminently successful, and soon after concluded with the Nizam a treaty of alliance against Tippoo Sultan, for which services his majesty was pleased to create him a Baronet, 25 Feb. 1791, and the Court of Directors of the East India Company to take out his patent at the public expense. In 1792, he was appointed, by the Marquess Cornwallis, commissioner to adjust, in concert with agents of the Nizam and the Mahrattas, a preliminary and definitive treaty of peace with the commissioners of Tippoo Sultan, by which the latter prince ceded half his dominions, and agreed to the payment of three millions three hundred thousand pounds to the three allied powers, for the expenses of the war, and to deliver up two of his sons as hostages for the due performance of the treaty. Lineage.

This family traces its descent to a very remote period in English history, one of its ancestors having received the honour of knighthood from HENRY I.; and another, John Wodehouse, said to have distinguished himself in 1415, at the celebrated battle of Agincourt, and to have obtained as a reward for his valour, from HENRY V., the crest, as well as the arms, motto, and supporters, now borne by his descendants. This JOHN WODEHOUSE, who was eldest son and heir of Sir John Wodehouse, Knt. Constable of Rising Castle, by Margaret, his wife, dau. and sole heir of Sir Thomas Fastolf, Knt. of KIMBERLEY, co. Norfolk, was gentleman of the privy chamber to King HENRY IV., and esquire of the body to King HENRY V. In 1414, he was admitted one of the chamberlains of the exchequer for life, and was four times elected M.P. for Norfolk. By Alice Furneaux, his wife, he left at his decease, in 1430, a son,

HENRY WODEHOUSE, of Rydon, and of Kimberley, co. Norfolk, to whom King HENRY V. stood sponsor. He was s. by his brother,

Lord Kingsale enjoys the hereditary privilege (granted by King John to De Courcy, Earl of Ulster) of wearing his hat in the royal presence.

Lineage.

Sir John Courcy, having distinguished himself temp. Henry II. in that monarch's wars in England and Gascony, was sent into Ireland, in the year 1177, as an assistant to William Fitz-Adelm, in the government of that kingdom. Sir John having prevailed upon some of the veteran soldiery to accompany him, invaded the province of Ulster with twenty-two knights, fifty esquires, and about three hundred foot-soldiers, and after many hard fought battles, succeeded in attaching that quarter of the kingdom to the English monarchy, for which important service he was created, in 1181 (being the first Englishman dignified with an Irish title of honour), Earl of Ulster. His lordship continued in high favour during the remainder of the reign of his royal master, and performed prodigies of valour in Ireland; but upon the accession of King John, his splendour and rank having excited the envy of Hugh de Lacie, appointed governor of Ireland by that monarch, the Earl of Ulster was treacherously seized while performing penance, unarmed and barefooted, in the churchyard of Downpatrick, on Good Friday, anno 1203, and sent over to England, where the king condemned him to perpetual imprisonment in the Tower, and granted to Lacie, all the earl's possessions in Ireland. After de Courcy had been in confinement about a year, a dispute happening to arise between King John and Philip-Augustus of France concerning the Duchy of Normandy, the decision of which being referred to single combat, King John, more hasty than advised, appointed the day, against which the King of France provided his champion; but the King of England, less fortunate, could find no one of his subjects willing to take up the gauntlet, until his captive in the Tower, the stout Earl of Ulster, was prevailed upon to accept the challenge. But when everything was prepared for the contest, and the champions had entered the lists, in presence of the Kings of England, France, and Spain, the opponent of the earl, seized with a sudden panic, put spurs to his horse, and fled the arena; whereupon the victory was adjudged by acclamation to the champion of England. The French king being informed, however, of the earl's powerful strength, and wishing to witness some exhibition of it, de Courcy, at the desire of King John, cleft a massive helmet in twain at a single blow. The king was so well satisfied with this signal performance, that he not only restored the earl to his estates and effects, but desired him to ask anything within his gift, and it should be granted. To which the earl replied, that having estates and titles enough, he desired that his successors might have the privilege (their first obeisance being paid) to remain covered in the presence of the sovereign, and all future kings of England; which request was immediately conceded. This heroic warrior and able statesman d. in France, about the year 1219. Giraldus Cambrensis asserts that Sir John de Courcy, Earl of Ulster, d. without lawful issue, and this statement seems to be corroborated by the omission of the name of any child in the numerous endowments made to monasteries by De Courcy and his brother-in-law, Reginald, King of Man. In those charters of endowment no mention ever occurs of any child of Sir John de Courcy, Earl of Ulster, among the various relations whose souls are to be prayed for.

Milo de Courcy, upon whom Henry III. conferred, in the 7th year of his reign, A.D. 1223, the Barony of Kingsale and Ringrone, co. Cork, is named in the Rot. Pat. 6 King John, as a hostage for the appearance of Sir John de Courcy, Earl of Ulster, and is described therein as "Milo, filius Johannis de Courcy, junioris." For five centuries afterwards, the honours descended regularly.

Lineage.

The surname Kinloch appears to be one of the earliest found in Scottish annals. The name KINLOCH is derived from the locality in which the first possessions of the family were situated, namely, at the head of Rossie Loch, in Fifeshire,

George Kinloch, of that ilk, and of Cruivy, in the county of Fife, chief of all the Kinlochs in Scotland, lived in the reigns of James IV. and V., and d., leaving, besides other sons

I. Sir Alexander, his heir, who sold the estate of Kinloch, in Fife, to Balfour of Balgarvie, and who d. without leaving male issue.

II. David, the progenitor of the families of Kinloch of Kilrie; Kinloch of Kinloch; and Kinloch of Gourdie.

This

David Kinloch was a sailor, and acquired property in Perthshire. He d. in the reign of Queen Mary, leaving a son,

David Kinloch, b. in 1560, who became eminent as a physician, and was a great traveller. He was a man of learning; one of his poems appears in the Delicice Poetarum Scotorum. He acquired the lands of Aberbothrie and others, which were created a barony under a charter from James VI. to Davidi Kinloch, Medicinæ Doctori, anno 1616. He also acquired the estate of Over Balmyle, situated, as were his previous purchases, in Strathmore, Perthshire. A charter under the Great Seal was then granted to him creating the whole of these possessions into the barony of Kinloch, under the designation of Kinloch of that ilk. After settling in Perthshire, he m. Grizel, dau. of Hay of Gourdie, a branch of the noble family of Errol. Dr. David left two sons and one dau.,

Her Ladyship, in conjunction with her husband, assumed by Royal Licence 6 Dec. 1890, the surname and arms of Grenville.

Lineage.

Sir Edward Bruce, b. 1548, was made Commendator of Kinloss Abbey in 1593. On 2 Feb. 1602, he had on his resignation a charter of Kinloss, with the title of free baron and lord of parliament as Lord Kinloss, with remainder to his heirs and assignees. He was ambassador to England in 1598 and 1601, and accompanied King James to England in 1603, when the manor of Whorlton and part of the possessions of Jervaux Abbey was conferred on him, and he was made a naturalized English subject and Master of the Rolls. On 3 May, 1608, he had a grant under the Great Seal of Scotland (without any resignation), of Kinloss, as a temporal barony with the title of Lord Bruce, of Kinloss, with remainder to heirs male of his body, whom failing, to his heirs and assignees. He m. Magdalene, dau. of Alexander Clerk, of Balbirnie, co. Fife (afterwards wife of Sir James Fullerton), and had issue. From his time the barony passed in regular succession (see Elgin, E.) to

Thomas Bruce, 3rd Earl of Elgin, and 5th Lord Kinloss. He m. twice, and by his 1st wife, Elizabeth, only surviving dau. of Henry Seymour, Lord Beauchamp, and sister and heir of William, Duke of Somerset, had a son and successor,

Charles, 4th Earl of Elgin and 3rd Earl of Ailesbury, b. 1682, M.P. for Great Bedwyn, 1705-8, and for Marlborough, 1710 to 1711; summoned to the House of Lords, 31 Dec. 1711, in his father's Barony of Bruce of Whorlton. On 17 April, 1746, he was created Baron Bruce of Tottenham, co. Wilts, with remainder, failing his issue, to his nephew, Thomas Bruce Brudenell, son of his sister, Elizabeth (see Ailesbury, E.). He m. 1st, Lady Anne Savile (who d. 18 July, 1717), dau. and co-heir of William, 2nd Marquess of Halifax, and had,

Lineage.

The important hereditary office of Great Marischal of Scotland was held by the family of Keith, from the 12th century. Hervey, son of Waren, in the reign of DAVID I., owned half the lands of Keith, called Keith-Waren, and afterwards Keith-Marischal. His son, Hervey, of Keith, was King's Marischal under MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM I. His descendant,

SIR WILLIAM KEITH, Great Marischal of Scotland, the 10th in direct descent from the founder of the family, was created Earl Marischal of Scotland prior to July, 1458, and d. before 1476. By Mary, dau. of Sir James Hamilton, of Cadzow, he had, with other issue, a son,

WILLIAM KEITH, 2nd Earl Marischal. He m. Muriella, dau. of Thomas, 1st Lord Erskine, by whom he had issue,

II. Harry-Fearnley, lieut. the Buffs, b. 8 Jan. 1876.
III. Yvone, b. 1878.
IV. Athol, b. 1885.
I. Josephine-Mary. II. Margaret-Hope.

He s. his brother as 8th baronet, 23 June, 1880.

Lineage.

Tradition states that an ancestor of this principal family, as Nisbet calls it, possessed lands in Nithsdale in the beginning of the 9th century; but the first of its members upon record is.

IVONE KIRKPATRICK, who lived temp. DAVID I., and is witness to a charter of Robert Brus, the elder, or first Lord of Annandale, and of his wife Euphemia, granting the fishing of Torduff to the monks of Abbeyholm, which charter is undated, but the grantor d. 1141. The grandson of this Ivone, IVONE KIRKPATRICK, obtained a confirmatory charter of the lands of Closeburne from ALEXANDER II., dated 15 Aug. 1232. He m. the Lady Euphemia, dau. of Robert the Bruce, Lord of Annandale and Cleveland, and was s. by his son,

ADAM KIRKPATRICK, Lord of Closeburne, who was father of

STEPHEN KIRKPATRICK, Lord of Closeburne, styled in the chartulary of Kelso, in 1278, "Stephanus, Dominus Villae de Closeburne, filius et heres Domini Ade de Kirkpatrick." He had two sons, ROGER (Sir), his heir; and Duncan, m. Isabel, dau. and heir of David Torthorwald, of Torthorwald. The elder son,

SIR ROGER KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, was appointed by EDWARD I. in 1304 justiciary of all Galloway. He killed the Regent in Dumfries 1306, and was sent on an embassy to England, 1314, with Sir Niel Campbell, of Lochow. He had two sons,

I. THOMAS (Sir), his heir.
II. Roger (Sir), who took the castles of Durisdeer and Caerlaverock from the English in 1355. He was murdered in his bed in Caerlaverock Castle, by Sir James Lindsay, 1357, leaving two sons,

1 WINFRED, heir to his uncle.
2 Yvone, who is named in a confirmation charter of Closeburne, in 1409, had a son,

Stephen, also named in the same charter.

Sir Roger was one of the first who stood up for King ROBERT THE BRUCE, as he was returning from striking Red John Cummin in the church of Dumfries. Sir Roger went into the church, exclaiming, "I'll make sicker" (i.e., sure), and then gave Cummin several stabs with a dagger, for which the family has used a dagger for crest, and for motto, "I'll make sure." Sir Roger was s. by his elder son,

SIR THOMAS KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, who was granted by King ROBERT BRUCE, by charter dated at Lochmaben, 4 Jan. 1319, the lands of Redburgh, co. Dumfries, for his own and his father's special services. He had two daus., his co-heirs,

I. Elizabeth, m. Sir John Carlyle, ancestor of the Lord Carlyle.
II. Margaret, m. John Henrysone, of Glasgow, for which marriage there was a dispensation from Pope Clement VII.

Sir Thomas dying without issue male was s. by his nephew,

WINFRED KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, who was one of the hostages for the ransom of DAVID II., King of Scots, the other hostage being John, son and heir of Walter, High Steward of Scotland. He had two sons,

I. THOMAS (Sir), who s. his father, made a bright figure in the Border annals of his time. He resigned his baronies of Closeburne and Redburgh, into the hands of Robert, Duke of Albany, Governor of Scotland, and got a new charter of tailzie to himself and his heirs male with several substitutions in favour of his brethren and nephews, dated at Ayr, 14 Oct. 1409. He d. s. p.
II. ROGER, who carried on the line.

The 2nd son,

ROGER KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, s. his brother, was named in a charter dated 1445, and was a commissioner of the West Borders 1455. He m. 1435, Margaret, dau. of Thomas, 1st Lord Somerville (by Janet his wife, dau. of Sir Alexander Stewart, of Derneley), and had by her (who m. 2ndly, Sir Thomas Ker, of Fernihirst, ancestor of the Marquess of Lothian) issue,

I. THOMAS (Sir), his heir.
II. Alexander, of Kirkmichael, who was granted the lands and barony of Kilmichael, co. Dumfries, as a reward for the capture of James, 9th Earl of Douglas, at Burnswark, in 1484. His great-grandson, William, of Kirkmichael, sold a part of his estate to Sir John Charteris, about 1622. He d. 9 June, 1686, and was buried at Garrell Kirk. His grandson (b. 1714), ALEXANDER, of Drumcondra, settled near Dublin, and from him are descended the Kirkpatricks, of Coolmine, of Donaguimpie, co. Kildare, and of Craigs, co. Antrim.

I. Isabel, m. Roger Grierson, Esq. of Lag, who was fatally wounded at the battle of Sauchieburn in 1488.

Roger Kirkpatrick was one of the gentlemen on the inquest serving William, Lord Somerville, heir to his father, 10 June, 1435. To the writ of service is appended the seal of Kirkpatrick exhibiting the arms, crest, and supporters still borne by the family. He was s. by his elder son,

SIR THOMAS KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, m. Maria, dau. of Herbert, 1st Lord Maxwell, by Catherine his wife, dau. of Sir William Seton, of Seton, and had issue,

I. THOMAS (Sir), his heir.
II. Henry, m. Elizabeth Grierson, dau. of The Laird of Lagg, and had issue,

1 ROGER, heir to his cousin, of whom hereafter.
2 Samuel, of Auchinleck. 3 Alexander.

Sir Thomas d. 1502, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR THOMAS KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, who m. Margaret Sinclair, dau. of the Laird of Rosslyn, and had issue. He d. 1515, and was s. by his only son,

THOMAS KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, served heir to his father 1515. He was able to muster and bring into the field of battle 400 men, and was taken prisoner at the battle of Solway Moss 1542. He had an only son, who was hostage for his kinsman Oliver Sinclair after that defeat, but d. s. p., when the estate passed to his cousin,

ROGER KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, m. Lady Jean Cunningham, widow of George Haldane, of Gleneagles, dau. of William, 6th Earl of Glencairn, and granddau. of Alexander, the 5th Earl (by Lady Jane Hamilton his wife, dau. of James, 1st Earl of Arran, and granddau, of James, 1st Lord Hamilton, by the Princess Mary his wife, dau. of JAMES II., King of Scots), and had issue. He was s. by his only son,

SIR THOMAS KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, M.P. 1593, who m. twice, and 2ndly in 1614, Barbara, dau. of Sir Alexander Stewart, of Garlies, and had with two daus. (viz., Margaret, m. Robert Erskine, Esq., and Susanna), four sons, and by his first wife, name unknown, he had THOMAS, his heir.

I. THOMAS. II. John.
III. George. IV. Alexander, of Barnmure.

Sir Thomas, who was gentleman of the Privy Chamber to and knighted by JAMES VI., King of Scots, was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, M.P. 1639—41, m. Agnes, dau. of Sir John Charteris, of Amisfield, by Lady Margaret Fleming his wife, dau. of John, 1st Earl of Wigton, and had, with five daus. (viz., 1 Margaret, 2 Jean, m. John Corsane, of Meikleknock; 3 Janet; 4 Barbara, m. John Douglas, of Slanehouse; and 5 Sarah), six sons,

The 3rd son,

ROBERT KIRKPATRICK, of Closeburne, s. his father; m. Grizel, dau. of Sir William Baillie, of Lamington, M.P., by Grizel his wife, dau. of Sir Claud Hamilton, of Elieston, brother of the 1st Earl of Abercorn, and had four daus. (viz., 1 Grizel, m. John Grierson, of Barjarg; 2 Agnes; 3 Marian, and 4 Jean), and several sons,

I. THOMAS (Sir), his heir, 1st bart.
II. John, of Apine, d. s. p., and others.

Tradition asserts that in the troublous times of the latter half of the 17th century three brothers of the head of the house of Closeburne crossed in an open boat from Galloway to the county of Antrim, landed at the Giant's Causeway, and settled in the north of Ireland, and several families, descended from them are still resident there. Monumental inscriptions, unvarying tradition, and the usage of the Closeburne arms confirm their separation from the parent stem. One of the descendants of these Northern Kirkpatricks was JAMES KIRKPATRICK, of Kinflay, co. Antrim, whose dau., Elizabeth, m. John Wilson, Esq., and was mother of Samuel Wilson, of Ballycloughan, whose son was the late SIR SAMUEL WILSON, M.P., of Ercildoune, Australia, and of 10, Grosvenor Square, London.

reign of Henry VII.

Col. Roger Burges, a gentleman of considerable f in the co. Berks, and a stanch cavalier, succe opposed Cromwell himself, by holding out for th the town of Faringdon; of this affair an account is in Rushworth's Historical Collections (1645). He was wards taken prisoner at the battle of Naseby. Ever he succeeded to the command of Castle Cornet, a protection of the Island of Guernsey, in which he s
the greatest gallantry and protracted defence after th mission of every royalist garrison in the British domi

Lineage.

is very ancient and distinguished family has been d at Thirlestane for nearly six centuries. Its earliest tor was Sir Richard de Mautland, who gave divers to the abbey of Dryburgh, temp. ALEXANDER III.

RICHARD MAITLAND, 12th feudallord of Thirlestane, a person of considerable importance of the period in h he lived. In 1552 and 1560, we find him one of the missioners appointed to adjust the differences with and about the debatable lands on the borders. In he was constituted one of the extraordinary lords ession; in 1561, appointed one of the ordinary lords, n the following year, keeper of the privy seal, which r office he resigned in 1567 in favour of his 2nd son. lordship retired from the bench in 1584; on which ion JAMES VI. acknowledged by letter Sir Richard's ful services "to his grandsire, goodsire, gooddame, ner, and himself"; by which it would seem that this ient person was employed seventy years at least in ublic service. In the literary world he was known his history of the family of Seton, and poems on ral subjects. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Thomas ston, and had (with a second son, JOHN, of whom ently, and other issue) an eldest son,

LLIAM, of Leigthington, a man of great integrity and yalty, and the devoted friend and adherent of Queen ARY STUART. In 1558, William Maitland was constituted principal secretary of state to MARY; and in 1561 he was nominated one of her privy council. He many times afterwards came as Her Majesty's ambassador to the court of England. He d. 9 June, 1573. Secretary Maitland left issue only by his 2nd wife, Mary, dau. of Malcolm, Lord Fleming, viz., a dau., m. to Robert, 1st Earl of Roxburgh, and an only son,

JAMES, who m. Agnes Maxwell, but d. s. p., having sold his estate of Leigthington to his uncle,

SIR JOHN MAITLAND, Knt. (2nd son of Sir Richard), who, having filled the high offices of lord-privy-seal judge of the court of Session, secretary of state, and lord-chancellor of Scotland, was elevated to the peerage 18 May, 1590, by the title of Lord Maitland, of Thirlestane. His lordship m. Jane, only dau. and heir of James, 4th Lord Fleming, and granddau., maternally, of James Hamilton, Duke of Chatelherault; and dying in 1595, was s. by his only son, JOHN, 2nd baron, who was created, 2 April, 1616, Viscount Lauderdale; and 14 March, 1624, Lord Thirlestane and Boltoun, Viscount Maitland, and EARL OF LAUDERDALE, with remainder to his heirs male bearing the surname and arms of Maitland. His lordship was president of the council, and one of the ordinary lords of session. He m. Isabel, dau. of Alexander, Earl of Dunfermline, by whom he had issue, two sons and a dau. The earl d. 18 Jan. 1645, while president of the parliament, and was s. by his elder son.

JOHN, 2nd earl, b. 24 May, 1616, a man of great abilities and accomplishments, and one of the historic personages of his age. According to Lord Clarendon, he was deeply engaged with the Covenanters in the beginning of the civil war, and, when a young man, was one of the commissioners appointed by the Church of Scotland to meet with the assembly of divines at Westminster, in 1643, in order to new model the government of the Church. In 1644, he was one of the commissioners from the estate of Scotland to treat with the king at Uxbridge; but that treaty taking no effect, he was again commissioned by the Scottish parliament to treat with his majesty at Hampton Court, in 1647, the result of which was the raising an army to rescue the king. When the Scots were ready to march into England the earl was sent over to Holland to endeavour to prevail with the Prince of Wales to repair to the Scotch army; but it could not possibly be accomplished at that time, and before the earl reached the Scottish shore, the murder of CHARLES I. had been perpetrated. Lauderdale went again to Holland, to offer himself heart and deed to his new liege lord, CHARLES II.: he was most graciously received, and well and truly did he ever afterwards serve the king. In 1650, CHARLES came to Scotland, and the earl accompanied him, but Dukes Hamilton and Lauderdale were obliged to conceal themselves amongst their friends for some time after his majesty landed, they being both disagreeable to the Earl of Argyll and the Covenanters, who then ruled with power supreme. After the meeting of the parliament at Stirling in 1651, all parties were (in appearance) heartily united in the service of his majesty. Dukes Hamilton and Lauderdale seemed to have most of the king's confidence. Lauderdale continued a close companion of his majesty till the fatal battle of Worcester, where he was taken prisoner, and sent to the Tower of London. He underwent a severe confinement of nine years. The Restoration in 1660 released him. The king felt for the sufferings of Lauderdale, and had the highest sense of his great learning and of his wisdom and knowledge in affairs of state; he loved him both for his fidelity and his ability, and Lauderdale became first favourite, and prime minister. He was made secretary of state, president of the council, heritable high sheriff of the co. Edinburgh, one of the extraordinary lords of session, first commissioner of the treasury, one of the lords of his majesty's bedchamber, lord high commissioner to the parliament, and governor of Edinburgh Castle. About the same time he took his seat in that famous cabinet council known as the Cabal administration, his initial L. giving the final letter to the word Cabal, formed from the initials of the five who composed the council. On 1 May, 1672, he was created MARQUESS OF MARCH, and DUKE OF LAUDERDALE, by patent, to him and the heirs male of his body; and on the 3 June following, he was installed at Windsor, a knight of the garter. On the 25 June, 1674, he was created a peer of England, by the titles of Baron Petersham and Earl of Guilford, both in the co. Surrey, by patent, also to the heirs male of his body, and he was made one of the privy council for Scotland, England, and Ireland. The Duke of Lauderdale's public character has been the subject of much severe comment on the part of some historians, whilst others have been quite as warm in his praise. The Duke of Lauderdale m. 1st, Anne, 2nd dau. of Alexander, 1st Earl of Home, co-heir, with her sister, Margaret, Countess of Moray, of her brother, James, 2nd Earl of Home, by whom he had an only child, ANNE, m. in 1666, to John, 2nd Marquess of Tweeddale. The duke m. 2ndly, 17 Feb. 1671-2, Eliza, Countess of Dysart, relict of Sir Lionel Talmash, Bart., but had no other issue. He d. 24 Aug. 1682, when all the titles granted to himself expired, while his family honors devolved upon his brother,

CHARLES, 3rd Earl of Lauderdale. His lordship m. in 1652, Elizabeth, dau. and sole heir of Richard Lauder, Esq. of Hatton, co. Edinburgh, by whom he had issue, RICHARD, JOHN, and Charles, besides three other sons and two daus. The earl, who was general of the Mint, deputy-treasurer, and one of the judges of the court of Session in Scotland, and a baronet of Nova Scotia (created 12 May, 1672), d. in 1691, and was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD, 4th earl, b. 20 June, 1653. This nobleman, who was a privy councillor, general of the Mint, and lord-justice-general from 1681 to 1684, was outlawed in 1694, for his adhesion to the fortunes of JAMES II. He m. Anne, 2nd dau. of Archibald, 9th Earl of Argyll, which lady m. 2ndly, Charles, 6th Earl of Moray, and d. 18 Sept. 1734. The 4th son,

SIR HENRY-MONTGOMERY LAWRENCE, was b. at Mattura, in Ceylon, 28 June, 1806, and entered the military service of the East India Company, in the Bengal artillery, 1821, and became a lieut.-col. in 1846. He was in the Cabul and Sutlej campaigns in 1843, and was British resident at Nepaul in 1843, after which he was made lieut.-colonel and military C.B. He was appointed, in 1846, Resident at Lahore and governor-general's agent on the north-west frontier. He attained the rank of general, was, for his eminent services, made a civil K.C.B. in 1848, was named chief commissioner for the government of the Punjaub on its annexation in 1849, and, in the spring of 1857, went to Lucknow, as chief commissioner of Oude, after that territory had been some time united to British India. Here he was when the mutiny broke out, and here, within the fortified residency of Lucknow, he was intrenched with all the Europeans and the others who remained faithful, and he thus began that renowned defence, which for skill, endurance, and heroic bravery, has little to rival it in the annals of war. He did not, however, live to share in the glorious result. He was, on the 2nd July, 1857, mortally wounded by a shell, and d. in the residency two days afterwards. Sir Henry Lawrence was author of The Adventures of an Officer in Runjeet Singh's service. He m. 21 Aug. 1837, Honoria, dau. of the Rev. This very eminent civil servant of the East Indian government was the younger brother of Sir Henry-Montgomery Lawrence K.C.B. (see supra, lineage Sir H.-H. LAWRENCE, Bart.), and was educated at Haileybury College where he obtained many prizes. He went to India in 1829, and his career there has been of the greatest public utility. After filling various minor offices, he was appointed commissioner of the Sutlej in 1846, and commissioner of the Punjaub in 1849. He was made a K.C.B. in 1856. The energy and activity he displayed at Lahore on the outbreak of the Sepoy mutiny tended not a little to the victorious suppression of that terrible insurrection. In reward, Sir John Lawrence was made a G.C.B. (civil) in 1857, and was created a Baronet, 16 Aug. 1858, to hold to him and the heirs male of his body. He was a member of the Indian Council. The court of Directors of the East India Company granted him a life pension of 2,000*l.* a year, which, by an act specially passed 27 Vic. cap. 2, he was empowered to hold with his full salary as VICEROY OF INDIA, to which high office he was appointed in 1864, and from which he retired in 1868. Lineage.

The family of COKE, from which the Earl of Leicester derives through female descent, and which he now represents, is deduced by CAMDEN, from

WILLIAM COKE, of Didlington, in the co. of Norfolk, mentioned in a deed, anno 1206, who was father, by his wife Felice, of

GEOFFREY COKE, of Didlington, from whom descended

SIR EDWARD COKE, the celebrated lawyer. This eminent person the son of Robert Coke, Esq. of Mileham, co. Norfolk, and Winifred, his wife, dau., and one of the heirs of William Knightley, of Morgrave-Knightley, in the same shire, was born at the seat of his father, in 1549. He m. 1st, Bridget, dau. and co-heir of John Paston, Esq. of Huntingfield Hall, Suffolk, 3rd son of Sir William Paston, of Paston. His 2nd wife was Lady Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Cecil, first Earl of Exeter, and widow of Sir William Hatton, Knt. Coke's first alliance brought him honours and preferments as well as wealth. The cities of Coventry and Norwich soon after elected him their recorder. The county of Norfolk returned him to parliament, and the House of Commons placed him in the Speaker's chair. In the 35th of ELIZABETH (16 June, 1592), Mr. Coke was appointed solicitor, and 10 April, the next year, Attorney-General. In 1603, he received the honour of knighthood from King JAMES I. at Greenwich, and in three years afterwards was elevated, 30 June, 1606, to the bench, as chief-justice of the Court of Common Pleas, from which he was advanced, 25 Oct. 1613, to be Chief-Justice of the Court of King's Bench. Sir Edward, afterwards supporting energetically the privileges of the Commons, was committed to the Tower in 1621, and dismissed the privy council. In 1628, he was elected M.P. for Bucks, and then was distinguished for his strong and eloquent adhesion to the side of the Commons. His last public act was his proposing and framing the famous Petition of Right. Camden, in his Britannia, says, "that he was a person of admirable parts, than whom, as none ever applied himself closer to the study of the law, so never did any one understand it better. Of which, he fully convinced England, by his excellent administration for many years together, whilst attorney-general, and by executing the office of lord chief-justice of the Common Pleas with the greatest wisdom and prudence; nor did he give less proof of his abilities in his excellent reports, and commentaries upon our laws (especially his Commentary on the Tenures of Littleton), whereby he has highly obliged both his own age and posterity." Sir Edward Coke d. at his house at Stoke-Pogis, Bucks, 3 Sept. 1633, at the advanced age of eighty-three, and a lofty pillar near commemorates his residence there. A noble monument, with inscriptions, was also erected to his memory at his burial place, Tittleshall church, Norfolk, with his effigies habited in judge's robes, lying at full length, under a canopy supported by two marble pillars. Lineage.

s family takes its name from the manor of Leighton, lop, which was held as a knight's fee in the barony of lan by the LEIGHTONS from a very early period.

EL DE LATHUNE witnessed two grants to the Abbey of mond, co. Salop, between the years 1155 and 1166, and by his son.

RICHARD FITZTIHEL, who is registered in the Liber Niger as holding one knight's fee of old feoffment in the barony of Fitz-alan. He witnessed a deed of Bishop Hugh de Novant to Buildwass Abbey, and was s. by his son,

SIR RICHARD, to whom William Fitz-alan granted a confirmation of the vill of Leighton and the advowson of the church about 1200. This deed is still extant at Leighton. He was a benefactor to Buildwass Abbey, and one of 60 knights who made recognition in 1203 between the Abbott of Haughmond and John Kilpec. He was s. by his son,

RICHARD, whose name occurs in the Testa de Nevill. He was verderer of Shropshire, and acted as one of the justices to deliver Shrewsbury goal in 1241, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM, constable of Oswestry 1256. His son,

RICHARD DE LEIGHTON, constable of Oswestry. In 1284 he made a grant to the abbot of Buildwas, and in 1300 reserved in a deed the power of making a park at Leighton,

SIR RICHARD DE LEIGHTON, M.P. for Shropshire 1313. Was commissioner of array for raising levies in Shropshire, and in 1324 was summoned to attend a great council at Westminster. To him is assigned a cross-legged monument of a knight in link armour now in Leighton church, on the shield of which are the arms of the family. He was s. by his son or grandson,

RICHARD DE LEIGHTON, M.P. for Shropshire, whose son,

JOHN DE LEIGHTON, party to many deeds between 1346 and 1359. He was s. by his son.

TER, DUKE OF (Maurice FitzGerald), s of Kildare, and Earl of Kildare, co. Earl and Baron of Offaly, co. Kildare, in Viscount Leinster, of Taplow, co. Bucking- Great Britain; and Baron Kildare, in the Kingdom ; b. 1 March, 1887 ; s. his father Duke, 1893. His Grace is the Premier arquess, and Earl of Ireland.

Lineage.

zGeralds are descended from "Dominus OTHO," pposed to have been of the family of Gherardini ce ; and this notion is confirmed by the Latin form Geraldini, assumed by his descendants. This sed over into Normandy, and thence, in 1057, and, where he became so great a favourite with he Confessor, that he excited the jealousy of the anes. However derived, his English possessions rmous, which, at his death, devolved on his son,

WALTER FITZ OTHO, who, it is somewhat remarkable, was treated after the Conquest as a fellow-countryman of the Normans. In 1078, he is mentioned in Domesday Book as being in possession of his father's estates ; he was castellan of Windsor, and warden of the forests in the co. of Berks. This fortunate heir put the cope-stone to his prosperity by a marriage with Gladys, the daughter of Rhiwallon ap Cynfyn, Prince of North Wales; and had three sons,

GERALD FITZ WALTER, his successor.
Robert, surnamed DE WINDSOR. Baron of Eston, co. Essex.
William, also surnamed De Windsor, ancestor of WINDSOR, Baron Windsor.

The eldest son,

GERALD FITZ WALTER, was appointed by Henry I., constable of Pembroke Castle and President of that co. and m. Nesta, dau. of Rhys ap Gruffydd, ap Tudor Mawr, Prince of South Wales, by whom he had three sons,

MAURICE, his heir.
William, ancestor of the families of Carew, Grace, Fitzmaurice, and Gerard.
David, Bishop of St. David's, d. 1176.

The eldest son,

MAURICE FITZGERALD, was the patriarch of the Irish Geraldines. In 1168, Dermot Mac Murrogh, King of Leinster, driven from his territory by Roderick O'Connor, King of Ireland, sought assistance from the English, and succeeded in enlisting in his cause the renowned Richard de Clare, Earl of Pembroke. Having reached St. David's, on his way back to Ireland, Dermot was hospitably received by David FitzGerald, Bishop of the diocese; and at the prelate's persuasion, his younger brother, Maurice, and his half-brother, Robert Fitzstephen, engaged to assist Mac Murrough with their forces. Soon after, Maurice embarked for Ireland, with two ships containing a small body of soldiers, and after having been invested with the lordship of Wexford, marched forward and took Dublin. But the Irish king was no idle or unconcerned spectator of this achievement. In 1171, he had gathered such an increase of strength that though Maurice was by this time joined by Strongbow, Roderick was able to invest Dublin with 30,000 men, while at sea he blockaded it with a fleet of thirty Manx vessels. The case of the English, with only 600 troops, seemed well nigh desperate. In this emergency, by Maurice's advice and earnest and inspiriting exhortations, the beleaguered garrison determined to trust to their superior warlike prowess and daring, and regardless of the disparity of numbers, to encounter the foe. The bold exploit was crowned with success; the Irish were completely defeated, and the king, Roderick, with difficulty escaped. Maurice died at Wexford in 1177, and was buried in the Abbey of Grey Friars, outside the walls of that town. He m. Alice, dau. of Arnulph de Montgomery, 4th son of Roger de Montgomery, who led the centre of the Norman army at Hastings, by whom he left five sons, of whom the eldest was WILLIAM, Baron of Naas; GERALD, the second, was Baron of Offaly; and THOMAS, the third, was ancestor of the EARLS OF DESMOND. The second son,

GERALD FITZMAURICE, summoned to Parliament, as BARON OFFALY, in 1205, and died the same year: his son and heir, by Katharine, his wife, daughter of Hamo de Valois, lord chief justice of Ireland in 1197, was

MAURICE FITZ GERALD, the second baron of Offaly. He bore the name of his grandfather, the gallant companion of Strongbow, and was not unworthy of it. Piety, it is evident, formed a strong ingredient in his character: for, in 1216, he introduced into Ireland the order of the Franciscans; in 1229, that of the Dominicans; and, in two years after, he built the Franciscan Abbey of Youghal. As a statesman, the second Lord Offaly exhibited considerable ability in the office of lord justice of Ireland, and as a soldier he seems to have fallen little short of his gallant predecessor, Maurice FitzGerald. He d. eventually in 1257, in the Monastery of Youghal. He m. Juliana, dau. of John de Cogan, lord justice 1247, and had three sons,

I. MAURICE, his successor.
II. Gerald, m. Johanna, dau. of Sir Geoffrey de Geneville, Lord of Trim, and had issue,
  1 MAURICE, who s. 1287, as 5th Baron Offaly.
  1 Juliana, m. John de Cogan.
III. Thomas, founded the Trinitarian Abbey at Adare for the redemption of Christian captives from the Moors; he m. Rohesia, heiress of Woodstock, near Athy, dau. of Richard de St. Michael, Lord of Rheban, and had one son,
  JOHN, who s. as 6th Baron Offaly, and was created EARL OF KILDARE.

The eldest son,

MAURICE FITZMAURICE, s. as 3rd Baron Offaly. This nobleman, who was afterwards chief governor of Ireland; m.

Emelina de Longespée, heiress of the territory of O'Murthy which included Kilkea and Castledermot, and dau. of Sr Stephen de Longespée, and had a son and two daus.,

GERALD, 4th baron.
Mabel, d. unm. Juliana, m. Thomas de Clare.

He d. at Ross, 1277, and was s. by his son,

GERALD, 4th Baron Offaly, who founded the Franciscan Abbey, at Clane, in 1271, d. s. p. at Rathmore, 1287, and was buried at Kildare. He was s. by his cousin,

MAURICE, 5th Baron Offaly, who m. Agnes de Valence, dau. of William, Earl of Pembroke, but d. s. p., when he was s. by his cousin,

JOHN FITZTHOMAS FITZGERALD, Lord Offaly. There is a tradition connected with John FitzThomas which explains the origin of the crest now used by the Offaly Geraldines. While an infant, he was in the Castle of Woodstock, when an alarm of fire was raised; in the confusion that ensued the child was forgotten, and on the servants returning to search for him, the room in which he lay was found in ruins. Soon after a strange voice was heard in one of the towers, and on looking up, they saw an ape, which was usually kept chained, carefully holding the child in his arms. The Earl afterwards, in gratitude for his preservation, adopted a monkey for his crest; and some of his descendants in memory of it, took the additional motto "non immemor beneficii." The life of JOHN FITZ-THOMAS FITZGERALD, 1st earl of Kildare, the child thus miraculously preserved, abounds in adventures that would form a fitting subject for romance. For his good services the English monarch (EDWARD II.) created him, by patent dated at Westminster, 14 May, 1316, EARL OF KILDARE, and assigned to him the town and castle of that name. He m. Blanche, dau. of John Roche, Baron of Fermoy, and had issue,

Gerald, d. young, 1303. THOMAS, s. as 2nd earl.
Joan, m. 1302, Sir Edmund Butler, created 1315, Earl of Carrick-MacGriffin, ancestor of the Earls, Dukes, and Marquises of Ormonde.
Elizabeth, m. Sir Nicholas Netterville, ancestor of the Viscounts Netterville.

The earl d. 10 Nov. 1316, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS, 2nd earl, appointed Lord Justice of Ireland 1320, and again in 1326, on the accession of Edward III. He m. 16 Aug. 1312, the Lady Joan de Burgh, 3rd dau. of Richard "the Red," Earl of Ulster, by whom (who m. 2ndly, 3 July, 1329, Sir John D'Arcy, Lord Justice of Ireland, and d. 22 April, 1359) he had three sons,

John, b. 1314; d. 1323. RICHARD, his successor.
MAURICE, who s. as 4th earl.

The earl d. at Maynooth, 9 April, 1328, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD, 3rd earl, b. 1317, who d. s. p. at Rathangan, 7 July, 1329, aged 12 years, when he was s. by his brother,

MAURICE, 4th earl, b. 1318. In 1347 he was summoned to attend Edward III. with thirty men-at-arms and forty hobellers, and in consequence he accompanied the King to France; was present at the siege of Calais, and received the honor of knighthood for his gallant conduct. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Bartholomew Burghersh, K.G., by whom he left at his decease, 25 Aug. 1390, two sons, GERALD and JOHN. The elder son,

GERALD, 5th earl, Lord-Deputy to Thomas, Duke of Gloucester (son of Henry IV.), Lord Lieutenant; m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir John Rochford (who had been granted in ward to his father by RICHARD II.), and had, a son, Thomas, who d. s. p., and a dau. Joan, wife of James, 4th Earl of Ormonde. He d. 1410, and was buried in the Grey Abbey at Kildare, when he was s. by his brother,

JOHN, 6th earl, surnamed "Cam." He strengthened and enlarged the Castle of Maynooth, then "one of the largest and richest Earl Houses in Ireland," and for a century the residence of the earls. He m. Margaret de la Herne, and d. 17 Oct. 1427, leaving an only son his successor,

THOMAS, the 7th earl. This nobleman was appointed, in 1454 and 1455, lord-deputy of Ireland, and was continued in the government of Ireland until 1459. In 1468, he was appointed lord-chancellor of Ireland, but being involved with the Earl of Desmond, he was attainted with that nobleman (who suffered death), but subsequently pardoned, set at liberty, and restored in blood, by act of parliament. His lordship was afterwards lord-justice; and, in 1471, deputy to George, Duke of Clarence. He m. Lady Joan Fitz-Gerald, dau. of James, 7th Earl of Desmond, by whom, who d. 1486, and was buried at the Monastery of Adare, he had four sons and two daus.

The earl d. 25 March, 1477, and was s. by his eldes

GERALD, 8th earl, called Geroit More, who was tuted, on his accession to the peerage, Lord-De Richard, Duke of York, and held a parliament on Friday, after the feast of St. Petronelle the In 1480, he was re-appointed lord-deputy; an upon the accession of HENRY VII., deputy to Duke of Bedford, the lord-lieutenant. Upon the however, of Lambert Simnel, and his tutor, Simon, an Oxford priest, in Ireland, the Lor Kildare, the chancellor (Thomas Fitzgerald, the brother), treasurer, and other nobles in the terest, immediately acknowledged the impostor, him proclaimed in Dublin, by the style of EDWA and the lord-deputy assisted with the others at his co in Christ's Church, 2 May, 1487. In the engageme afterwards decided the fate of Simnel, near Stoke, t cellor, Fitzgerald, fell; but the Lord-Deputy had t fortune to make his peace with the King. And w by his fidelity and his talents as a statesman and s did the great earl repay the king's confidence. Warbeck, on his landing at Cork in 1497, was suc opposed by the Earls of Kildare and Desmo narrowly escaped being taken prisoner. For this g vice, King Henry conferred on Kildare several mano counties of Warwick and Gloucester. With a strongh Kildare controlled and subdued the native chiefta 1504, he marched against Clanricarde, who had f confederacy of several Irish chiefs in opposition royal authority, and fought and gained the B Knock Tuagh. For this good service Kildare was a Knight of the Garter. The days of this great m now drawing fast to a conclusion. In 1513, he against Lemyvannon, or O'Carroll's Castle, now "Leap Castle," in the King's County; but as watering his horse in the river Greese, at Kilkea, shot by one of the O'Mores, of Leix, and after linge a few days, he died of his wound, and was buried own chapel, at Christ Church, before the high altar. shed describes him as a "mightie man of statur honoure and courage, who had bin lord deputie a justice of Ireland three and thirtie yeares. His subsequent career fully corresponded with mencement. For a length of time he resisted, suc- , the famous lord deputy, Skeffington, with all the that England could afford him, or that he derived h of the native Irish septs as had been previously to the earl, or were bought over by the hope of advantage. When, finally, deserted by the last of s, Kildare found himself obliged to surrender, it n a promise, that he should receive a full pardon rrival in England. But this pledge was shamefully by HENRY VIII. For sixteen months the earl carcerated in the Tower of London, and then, with his five uncles, two of whom had always been adherents of the king, was hanged, drawn, and ed at Tyburn, on the 8th of February, 1537, being t twenty-four years of age.
